BARRETT FAMILY.

THOMAS BARRETT, OF BRAINTREE, MASS.

- 1 *Thomas Barrett*₁, the ancestor, and his wife ²*Margaret*₁, emigrated from England to America sometime between 1635 and 1640, (the exact date is not known, nor can it now be definitely ascertained,) and settled in Braintree, Massachusetts, where he and his sons with their families continued to reside until 1663.

April 10th, 1663, he and his son ⁴*Thomas Barrett, Jr.*₂, (who had removed to Chelmsford, Mass., some time prior to March 1660,) purchased a house and fifty-two acres of land in Chelmsford, Mass., on what was then and is now known as "Robbins Hill," and settled there (Chelmsford) immediately afterwards (April 10th, 1663).

THOMAS AND MARGARET () BARRETT (1-2).

- (1) *Thomas*₁ and ²*Margaret Barrett*₁ had at least three children, and probably more, all of whom are believed to have been born in England, as there is no record of the birth of any of them to be found in the town records of Braintree, or elsewhere in Massachusetts. The names of the three persons

INTRODUCTION.

Some twenty-five years ago, when the compiler of the following pages had somewhat more of leisure at his command than it has been his privilege to enjoy in later years, burdened as they have been with the cares, responsibilities and duties of a laborious and exacting profession, he indulged, to some extent, in historic-genealogical study and investigation, and became so much interested therein that he determined to prepare for his personal information and pleasure, a genealogy of his branch of the Barrett family.

In the prosecution of this purpose, he spent no little time examining the records of Middlesex and other counties in Massachusetts, the town records of several towns in those counties, and such town histories as were then to be found in the excellent and valuable libraries of the Massachusetts Historical Society and the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, of which he was a member, and thus gathered, in a crude form, much valuable material and information relating to the Barrett and other families. He soon learned, however, that the work, which in the ardor and enthusiasm of youth he had undertaken to perform, was much greater than he could reasonably expect to carry to a successful termination, with the time and means at his command. Nor was this the only reason that induced him, for a long time at least, to abandon the undertaking.

Early in his investigation he found that such learned and accomplished specialists in genealogical studies as Savage, Shattuck, Hudson and others had seriously erred in some of their genealogical tracings, or else that the compiler of this work was misreading the early records of Middlesex towns and county, or was misapplying the facts and information therein contained, and consequently was arriving at erroneous conclusions. To say the least, this was discouraging to one whose inexperience in such matters would naturally lead him to accept and adopt, as conclusive, the result of the investigations of those who, for many years, had been, and still were, unquestioned authorities in matters of New England genealogy.

It would have been the grossest presumption for the compiler to have intimated a doubt as to the accuracy of such eminent authority. In the language of one of the most eminent and accomplished genealogical scholars of New England to-day, Mr. George Tolman of Concord, Mass.: "All of these works" (alluding to the works of Savage, Shattuck, Hudson and of "Wyman's Genealogies and Estates of Charlestown") "being printed and in the hands of every New England genealogist, are widely accepted as authority, and the man who undertakes to say that any particular statement of any of these authors is erroneous, must be prepared with evidence that will stand the most thorough and critical analysis and examination."

To illustrate the doubts, contradictory statements and difficulties which early beset the compiler, let him cite two instances, not because these two were more embarrassing than a great many others which he found, but because they are fairly characteristic of the others.

The compiler very well knew that his great-grandfather was 110 Oliver Barrett(4), of Chelmsford, Mass.: that this Oliver Barrett married 208 Anna Fiske(5), daughter of Ebenezer and Bethiah (Muzzy) Fiske, of Lexington, Mass., October 24, 1754: and he also very well knew the names and dates and places of birth of the children of 110 Oliver(4) and 208 Anna(5) (Fiske) Barrett. This knowledge was positive and reliable. It had come to the compiler from his father and his uncle, both of whom for many years had personally known their grandmother, Anna (Fiske-Barrett) Parker, (after the death of her husband 110 Oliver Barrett(4), Anna (Fiske) Barrett married Lieut. Moses Parker, of Westford, Mass.), for after the death of her second husband, Lieut. Parker, she lived for several years with their father at Wilton, N. H. In addition to the knowledge thus obtained there were also open and accessible to him the sacred records of the "Old Family Bibles."

Hudson, in his "History of Lexington," "who is often seriously inaccurate when he might just as easily have been correct," and who, like Savage in his great work on New England genealogies, accepted Shattuck as an authority on the genealogies of Concord, Mass., families, says (after mentioning the settlement of the first Humphrey Barrett at Concord, Mass.), that "Oliver Barrett, a grandson of the emigrant (Humphrey Barrett, Sen.) married October 24, 1754, Anna Fiske, of Lexington, and settled in Chelmsford," etc.

Humphrey Barrett, Sen., and his son, Humphrey Barrett, Jun., were both born in England and both emigrated to this country, the son being about five years old at the time of his father's arrival in this country.

The fact is, and Shattuck, Savage and Hudson very well knew it, that the emigrant Humphrey Barrett, Sen., had grown up sons when he arrived in New England. He had, it is true, a grandson Oliver: but that grandson Oliver died unmarried in 1671, nearly sixty years before the Oliver Barrett who married Anna Fiske in October, 1754, was born, as may be seen in the tracing of Humphrey Barrett, Sen., and his descendants for four or five generations, to be found in the Appendix. Even his (Humphrey Barrett, Sen.) great-grandson Oliver, the grandson of Humphrey Barrett, Jun., was born in 1712, seventeen years before the birth of the compiler's great-grandfather 110 Oliver(4). He (the great-grandson of Humphrey, Sen.) married, December 8, 1737, Hannah Hunt and moved to Bolton, Mass., where he continued to reside until his death, April 4, 1788. 950 Rev. Dr. Samuel Barrett(6), an accomplished scholar, who had given no little attention to the genealogy of his family, made the same grave mistake.

It matters not whether Hudson referred to Oliver the grandson of Humphrey, Sen., or to Oliver the grandson of Humphrey, Jun.: in either case he is mistaken. Neither one of these Olivers last mentioned, married Anna Fiske. One of them died unmarried, the other married Hannah Hunt; neither of them ever lived in Chelmsford. The first one, Oliver, the grandson of Humphrey, Sen., was born, lived and died in Concord. The second one, Oliver, the grandson of Humphrey, Jun., was born in Concord, moved to Bolton, Mass., and died there.

The second instance referred to relates to the emigrant 1Thomas Barret(1), Sen., who came to New England about 1635, and first settled in Braintree, Mass., and also to his son, 4Thomas Barrett(2), Jun., both of whom afterwards (the latter in 1660 and the former about 1663) settled in Chelmsford, Mass., and shows how unnecessarily and inexcusably inaccurate and contradictory in his statements Dr. Savage could be.

Dr. Savage says (Gen. Dict., Vol. 1, pp. 125 and 126), "Thomas Barrett of Braintree, was admitted freeman, 1645; married, 14 Sept., 1655, Frances Woolderson; had Martha b., 17 Sept., 1656; Mary b., 17 April, 1658, and perhaps others, and died at Chelmsford 1668. In his will of 1 July, 1662, probated Aug. following (August, 1662) he names wife Margaret (not wife Frances), eldest son John, son Thomas and youngest son Joseph."

Dr. Savage's grave mistake in the above quotation is made most apparent by the italicized words, names and dates. The facts are that Thomas Barrett, Sen., had wife Margaret; that they had at least three children, sons (probably more), John, Thomas and Joseph; that their second son, Thomas Barrett, Jun., married at Braintree, Mass., September 14, 1655, Frances Woolderson, and had issue, daughters as above stated; that Thomas Barrett, Sen., died at Chelmsford, Mass., October 6, 1668; and that his wife Margaret died at Chelmsford, July 8, 1681. These facts clearly appear in the records of Braintree and Chelmsford, and there can be no excuse for the grave and misleading mistake in names and dates made by Dr. Savage.

Mr. Tolman, commenting on this error in confounding names and dates, says: "Herein Dr. Savage, as in many other instances, confounds two individuals of the same name, and as will be noticed, admits to probate in August, 1662, the will of a man who, as he says in the same paragraph, died in 1668. In other words, Dr. Savage would, from his statement, have us believe that Thomas Barrett's will was probated in his lifetime and more than four years before he died. The marriage of Thomas Barrett and Frances Woolderson and the birth of the two daughters are, however, correctly cited from the Braintree records.

"April 10th, 1663, James Parker of Chelmsford conveys to 'Thomas Barrett, Senior, and Thomas Barrett, Junior, both of Braintree, house and lands in Chelmsford, 52 acres on Robbins' Hill, bounded by his own lands and those of Jacob Parker, and by the town commons.' Parker's wife, Elizabeth, joins in the conveyance and signs the deed. The instrument is acknowledged by James Parker, November 2, 1664. His wife did not, at that time, acknowledge the deed, but on September 10, 1665, Elizabeth Barrett did acknowledge the same as her free act and deed. Middlesex Deeds, Vol. III, Fol. 3.

"This conclusively shows that there were two Thomas Barretts, father and son, living in Braintree in April, 1663. It shows, moreover, that James Parker, the grantor in said deed, died between November, 1664, and September, 1665, and that his widow married some one of the Barrett family, though I can find no record of such marriage."

Frequently meeting with such contradictory and irreconcilable statements as those above cited, and that, too, in works of recognized authority, the compiler soon wearied of work which promised so little satisfaction, but not, however, until he had become thoroughly satisfied that his first American ancestor was not the Humphrey Barrett, Sen., who settled in Concord, Mass., about 1639 or 1640. From the investigations made at that time, as well as from those more recently made, the compiler has not been able to satisfy himself that there was any near relationship between the Barretts of Braintree and the Barretts of Concord, Charlestown and Marlboro, except that of intermarriage, of which there were quite a number of instances.

It is possible that Thomas, Sen., of Braintree; Humphrey, Sen., of Concord; James, Sen., of Charlestown, (1635) and John of Marlboro, all of whom emigrated to New England about the same time, may have been related to each other, but if so, owing to the imperfection of the early records, it is not easy, if indeed it is possible, to determine now, precisely, by what degree of consanguinity these several families were connected. It is hardly probable, however, that these four families are another instance of the traditional "three brothers" (four) "who came over from England together," of which so much has been said and written of other families with but little foundation in fact.

Mr. Charles Edward Potter, who has recently published a very carefully edited work, entitled "Genealogies of Some Old Families of Concord, Mass., and their Descendants," after a most diligent and thorough investigation, arrived at practically the same conclusion as that above stated, and so wrote to the compiler; while Mr. George Tolman, who has given the subject quite as thorough an investigation as any one, is inclined to the opinion that these different families of Barretts were, to a greater or less degree, related to each other by ties of consanguinity. His opinion is justly entitled to great weight.

The reader will naturally inquire why the compiler, after having once abandoned his purpose to prepare a genealogy of his branch of the Barrett family, resumed his work and now presents it in such a fragmentary and unsatisfactory form. The reason, briefly stated, is this: Some three years or more ago the citizens of Wilton, N. H., (the native town of the compiler,) voted to publish a history of the town, and appointed a committee to collect the material and prepare the same for publication.

While on a visit at Wilton, soon after the action of its citizens above referred to, the compiler was requested by a member of that committee (an old and esteemed friend of his father) to whom it was known that the compiler had, at one time, collected a good deal of material relating to his family genealogy, to prepare for and furnish to the publication committee, a tracing of the genealogy of his grandfather, Ebenezer, and his (Ebenezer's) brother Benjamin, (both of whom had settled in Wilton early in the present century—1803), and their descendants. A promise having been made to prepare and furnish the tracing asked for, the work had to be done. How should it be done? How elaborate and complete a tracing should be made? Where should it begin and where end?

After having examined and arranged the material collected many years ago, the compiler decided to commence with his first American ancestor, 1Thomas Barrett(1), Sen., of Braintree, and trace all of his (1Thomas(1), Sen.) descendants in the male line to 110 Oliver Barrett(4) of Chelmsford, Mass., and from that point to make a full and [complete tracing of the descendants of 110 Oliver(4) and 208 Anna(5) (Fiske) Barrett, to the latest born of the present generation. Such has been the intent and purpose of the compiler. Although the names and the dates and places of birth of the females in each generation, down to and including the fourth, and, in some cases, the fifth generation, have been given in these tracings as fully as the same appear in the records, and also, whenever it has been possible to obtain them, the names of the persons whom they married, yet, in no case has there been any attempt to trace the descendants of the female line of the family, prior to 110 Oliver(4) and 208 Anna(5) (Fiske) Barrett.

To have pursued any other course would have taken more time than the compiler had at his disposal, and would have largely increased the size of this book. For similar reasons, no attempt has been made to extend the tracings of the three brothers and the four sisters of 110 Oliver Barrett(4). To have done so would have more than quadrupled the size of the book.

Enough, however, has been done in this direction by the compiler, to make it now a practicable and comparatively easy matter for any person who has the time and the inclination, to extend the tracing of any or all members of the family not here given in full. The path has been marked out, the trees have been blazed along the entire line, and now, without much difficulty, the patient genealogical investigator will be enabled to perfect the work so unwisely undertaken, and so unskillfully and unsatisfactorily performed by the compiler. Errors there doubtless are, for many of which the compiler is alone responsible: and some there are for which he ought not to be held accountable.

No one save him who has undertaken a work of this character, can fully appreciate the difficulties to be encountered and overcome. Some persons very much dislike to be annoyed by applications for information relating to themselves, or to their families: there are others, who, while they are quite willing to give such information, are unable to do so; and there are still others who give such information, but in writing that is scarcely legible, and who have no very clear idea of the necessity for absolute accuracy in names, dates and places. The compiler has not attempted to sketch in his own language, except in a very few instances, the life of any one whose name appears in the following pages, but whenever any person has furnished a brief notice or sketch of a friend or relative he has thought it proper to give it a place in this book. If, therefore, no special mention is made of some who should have received such mention, it is because no one has offered to furnish a sketch of them, and the compiler not having his attention directed to the facts necessary to prepare such a sketch, has been unable to prepare one. Perhaps, everything considered, it is quite as well that there are no more personal sketches, as it was not intended to make this book, in any sense or to any extent, biographical. The brief tracing of the Fiske family given on pages 28, 29, 30 and 31, is taken from Hudson's History of Lexington; and the tracing of the descendants of Humphrey Barrett, Sen., of Concord, Mass., to be found in the Appendix, has been carefully compared with and corrected from the tracings by Mr. Charles Edward Potter, in his book above referred to. The purpose of the compiler in giving, in the Appendix, the brief tracing of the descendants of Humphrey Barrett, Sen., is to show by comparison, that those who like Shattuck, Savage, Hndson and others, have placed 110 Oliver Barrett(4) in the Concord family of Barretts, and made him a lineal descendant of the emigrant Humphrey Barrett, Sen., are clearly and gravely mistaken. A careful comparison of the tracings of the two families, 1 Thomas Barrett(1) of Braintree, Mass., and 1 Humphrey Barrett(1), Sen., of Concord, will satisfy any one that 110 Oliver Barrett(4) was not of the Concord family, and that he is properly placed in this book. It has not been deemed necessary to index the names given in the Appendix. As has been already stated they are placed there solely for the purpose of comparison, and thereby to demonstrate the errors referred to.

In the preparation of the following pages, the compiler has consulted his own convenience and has made his tracings in his own way. It might, perhaps, have been better for him and for those who may wish to refer to his book, had he adopted as a model some one of the many very excellent "Genealogies" which have been published. He believes, however, that the explanation of the tracings given in the note will enable any one to easily read and understand them.*

To all who have so kindly and cheerfully assisted him, in furnishing important information and in other ways, the compiler takes this opportunity to extend his sincere thanks, and to express the hope that the monograph now presented to them may, in some measure, compensate them for their time and trouble.

The compiler cannot bring these introductory explanations and suggestions to an end without particular mention of his obligations to the following named persons: nor without specially thanking them for their kindness and valuable assistance: Mr. George Tolman, the learned and accomplished genealogical scholar and specialist, for his invaluable services in furnishing information not otherwise easily to be obtained; 695 Rev. Benjamin Fiske Barrett(6) of Germantown, Penn., for his kindness and courtesy in reading the compiler's manuscript, and for the valuable suggestions made by him; 960 Mr. George Barrett(6) of South Valley, New York, for his ever ready, cordial and hearty support and encouragement; and 1000 Mrs. Frances Langdon (Barrett)(7) Chandler, for her generous aid in furnishing the delicate and tender sketches of her mother, 983 Mary Susan (Greenwood) Barrett, and her grandparents, 984 Dr. William Pitt, and 985 Mary (Langdon) Greenwood. There are many other persons to whom the compiler is greatly indebted for valuable assistance and suggestions, whose names, for want of time and space, must remain unmentioned; let them, however, be assured that their kindness and assistance are fully appreciated and will ever be remembered by the compiler.

GENEALOGY

BARRETT FAMILY.

THOMAS BARRETT, OF BRAINTREE, MASS.

- 1 *Thomas Barrett*₁, the ancestor, and his wife ²*Margaret*₁, emigrated from England to America sometime between 1635 and 1640, (the exact date is not known, nor can it now be definitely ascertained,) and settled in Braintree, Massachusetts, where he and his sons with their families continued to reside until 1663.

April 10th, 1663, he and his son ⁴*Thomas Barrett, Jr.*₂, (who had removed to Chelmsford, Mass., some time prior to March 1660,) purchased a house and fifty-two acres of land in Chelmsford, Mass., on what was then and is now known as "Robbins Hill," and settled there (Chelmsford) immediately afterwards (April 10th, 1663).

THOMAS AND MARGARET () BARRETT (1-2).

- (1) *Thomas*₁ and ²*Margaret Barrett*₁ had at least three children, and probably more, all of whom are believed to have been born in England, as there is no record of the birth of any of them to be found in the town records of Braintree, or elsewhere in Massachusetts. The names of the three persons known to be the children of ¹Thomas₁ and ²Margaret Barrett₁ of Braintree, and subsequently of Chelmsford, were:

- 3 John Barrett₂,
- 4 Thomas Barrett, Jr.₂..
- 5 Joseph Barrett₂.

It is probable that ⁶Mary Barrett who married ⁷Sidrach Thayer in 1655, was a daughter of ¹Thomas₁ and ²Margaret Barrett₁. It is also probable that ⁸Margaret, wife of ⁹Joseph Parker of Groton, Mass., who, on the 18th day of September, 1666, sold and conveyed to ⁴Thomas Barrett₂ nine acres of land in Chelmsford, was a daughter of ¹Thomas₁ and ²Margaret₁.

The surname of this ⁸Margaret (wife of Joseph Parker) was unknown to ¹⁰Savage, ¹¹Butler or ¹²Shattuck, but I have inferred from certain known facts, that it is probable her maiden name was Margaret Barrett, and that she was a daughter of ¹Thomas₁ and ²Margaret Barrett₁. Be it known, however, that this is stated as an inference, and not as a fact easily to be proved at this late day.

- (1) Thomas Barrett₁ died at Chelmsford, October 6, 1668.
- (2) Margaret Barrett₁, widow of ¹Thomas Barrett₁, died at Chelmsford, July 8, 1681.

LIEUT. JOHN AND SARAH () BARRETT (3-13).

- (3) Lieut. John Barrett₂, son of ¹Thomas Barrett₁, married ¹³Sarah (surname and date of marriage unknown: there is no record of the marriage extant): they had seven children, four sons and three daughters, viz:
- 14 John Barrett₃. No record of birth.
- 15 Jonathan Barrett₃. No record of birth.
- 16 Lydia Barrett₃, born September 22, 1659. She married ¹⁷James Harwood, April 11, 1678.

- 18 Samuel Barrett₃, born June 16, 1660.
- 19 Mary Barrett₃, born March 13, 1662-3. She married ²⁰George Robbins, January 21, 1686.
- 21 Joseph Barrett₃. No record of birth.
- 22 Margaret Barrett₃, born November 10, 1667. She died January 2, 1681-2.
- (3) Lieut. John Barrett₂ died at Chelmsford, Mass., May 19, 1681.

THOMAS AND FRANCES (WOOLDERSON) BARRETT. (4-23.)

- (4) Thomas Barrett, Jr.,₂ son of ¹Thomas₁ and ²Margaret Barrett₁, was married at Braintree, Mass., September 14, 1655, to ²³Frances Woolderson, of Braintree, Mass. They had born to them at Braintree, two daughters, viz:
 - 24 Martha Barrett₃, born September 17, 1656. She was married July 10, 1676, to ²⁵Henry Sparks, of Exeter, N. H.
 - 26 Mary Barrett₃, born April 17, 1658. It is probable that she married a ²⁷Mr. Robbins.
- (4) Thomas₂ and ²³Frances (Woolderson) Barrett had born to them at Chelmsford, Mass., four children, one son and three daughters, viz:
 - 28 Margaret Barrett₃, born March 31, 1660. She was married at Chelmsford, Mass., November 22, 1681, to ²⁹Edward Spaulding, of Chelmsford.
 - 30 Moses Barrett₃, born March 25, 1662.
 - 31 Mehitable Barrett₃, born April 12, 1665. She was married at Chelmsford March 17, 1684, to ³²Samuel Goole. (Now spelled Gould).
 - 33 Anna Barrett₃, born December 7, 1668. She probably married ³⁴John Swallow.
- (23) Frances (Woolderson) Barrett died at Chelmsford, May 27, 1694.

THOMAS AND MARY () BARRETT. (4-35).

- (4) Thomas Barrett₂ married for a second wife ³⁵Mary () surname not known. This is my inference, but it logically follows from the following extracts from a deed dated December 10th, 1700, and recorded in Middlesex Registry of Deeds, vol. XII, fol. 635: "Thomas Barrett₂, "for and in consideration of the natural love and affection which I bear unto my beloved son ³⁴John Swallow," conveys to said ³⁴John Swallow all his real and personal property, "with the exception of one cow and one mare, which are to be kept by said Swallow for the use of me and of Mary, my now married wife, for the rest of our natural lives."
- (4) Thomas Barrett₂ died at Chelmsford, December 8, 1702, intestate, having given away, in his lifetime, all of his property.

JOSEPH AND MARTHA (GOOLE) BARRETT. (5-37).

- (5) Joseph Barrett₂, son of ¹Thomas₁ and ²Margaret Barrett₁, was married at Chelmsford, September 17, 1672, to ³⁷Martha Goole (Gould), daughter of ³⁸Francis and ³⁹Rose Goole (Gould), of Braintree, Mass.
- (37) Martha Goole (Gould) was born in Braintree, Mass., October 15, 1654.
- (5) Joseph₂ and ³⁷Martha (Goole) Barrett, had eight children, all born in Chelmsford, Mass., six daughters and two sons, viz:
- 40 Rebecca Barrett₃, born July 4, 1673. She married a ⁴¹Mr. Power.
- 42 Sarah Barrett₃, (birth not recorded). She married ⁴³George Glazier, of Lancaster, Mass., December 17, 1700.
- 44 Martha Barrett₃ (birth not recorded). She died at Chelmsford, July 20, 1678.

- 45 Hannah Barrett₃, (birth not recorded). She married a ⁴⁶Mr. Bennett.
- 47 Margaret Barrett₃, born April 28, 1683. She married ⁴⁸Ebenezer Robbins, January 27, 1702-3.
- 49 Miriam Barrett₃, born April 29, 1686. She married a ⁵⁰Mr. Whitney.
- 51 Josiah Barrett₃, born July 2, 1688.
- 52 Joseph Barrett₃, born in the latter part of 1689, or early in 1690. There is no record of the date of his birth; but as he is mentioned in his father's will, made and dated on the first day of October, 1711, as "the youngest son," and was named as one of the executors of that will, and as his brother ⁵¹Josiah was born July 2, 1688, it follows, first, that he must have been at least twenty-one years of age, October 1, 1711, and secondly, that, being younger than ⁵¹Josiah, he must have been born in 1689 or early in 1690.
- (37) Martha (Goole) (Gould) Barrett, wife of ⁵Joseph Barrett₂, died at Chelmsford, Mass., May 15, 1698, aged forty-three years and seven months.
- (5) Joseph Barrett₂ died at Chelmsford, December 17, 1711.

JOHN AND DOROTHY (PROCTOR) BARRETT. (14-53).

- (14) John Barrett₃, son of ³John₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, married ⁵³Dorothy Proctor, December 18, 1679. They had four children, all born in Chelmsford, Mass., three sons and one daughter, viz:
- 54 John Barrett₄, born April 22, 1686.
- 55 Joseph Barrett₄, born October 20, 1690.—Twin.
- 56 Benjamin Barrett₄, born October 20, 1690.—Twin.
- 57 Mary Barrett₄, born January 9, 1694-5.
- (14) John Barrett₃ died at Chelmsford, Mass., September 5, 1694. His widow, Dorothy (Proctor) Barrett, was married to ⁵⁸Samuel Robbins, March 4, 1701.

JONATHAN AND SARAH (LEARNED) BARRETT. (15-59.)

- (15) Jonathan Barrett₃, son of ³John₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, married for his first wife ⁵⁹Sarah Learned, daughter of ⁶⁰Isaac and ⁶¹Mary Learned, of Chelmsford, Mass., and he had by her four children, all born in Chelmsford, one son and three daughters, viz:
- 62 Mary Barrett₄, born November 20, 1684.
- 63 Jonathan Barrett₄, born October 28, 1687.
- 64 Deliverance Barrett₄, born February 24, 1689-90.
- 65 Experience Barrett₄, born January 3, 1694-5. She died January 11, 1694-5.
- (59) Sarah (Learned) Barrett, wife of ¹⁵Jonathan Barrett₃, died January 11, 1694-5.

JONATHAN AND ABIGAIL () BARRETT. (15-66.)

- (66) Abigail wife of ¹⁵Jonathan Barrett₃ died October 19, 1709. There is no record of the death of ¹⁵Jonathan Barrett₃.

SAMUEL AND SARAH (BUTTRICK) BARRETT. (18-71).

- (18) Samuel Barrett₃, son of ³John₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, married ⁷¹Sarah Buttrick of Concord, Mass., February 21, 1683. They had five children, all born in Chelmsford, three sons and two daughters, viz:

- 73 Samuel Barrett₄, born November 20, 1686. He died in infancy.

- 74 William Barrett₄, born November 21, 1689.
 75 Elizabeth Barrett₄, born December 10, 1692.
 77 Samuel Barrett₄, born April 24, 1697.
 There is no record of the death of ¹⁸Samuel Barrett₃.

JOSEPH AND ABIGAIL (HILDRETH) BARRETT. (21-77).

- (21) Joseph Barrett₃, son of ³John₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, married ⁷⁷Abigail Hildreth of Chelmsford, Mass., December 15, 1696; and he had by her eight children, all born in Chelmsford, four sons and four daughters, viz.

 (77) Abigail (Hildreth) Barrett, wife of ²¹Joseph Barrett₃ died December 30, 1729. No record of the death of ²¹Joseph Barrett₃.

MOSES AND HANNAH (SMITH) BARRETT. (30-86).

- (30) Moses Barrett₃, son of ⁴Thomas₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, married ⁸⁶Hannah Smith of Dorchester, Mass., September 10, 1684, and had by her two children, sons, both born in Chelmsford, viz:
 87 Moses Barrett₄, born October 27, 1685.
 88 Thomas Barrett₄, (date of birth not recorded).
 I am unable to give the date of the death of ³⁰Moses Barrett₃.

JOSIAH AND MARY (DILL) BARRETT. (51-89).

- (51) Josiah Barrett₃, son of ⁵Joseph₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, married ⁸⁹Mary Dill of Concord, Mass., February 20, 1710-11, and had by her five children, two sons and three daughters, viz:
- 91 Josiah Barrett₄, born December 14, 1711. He died January 27, 1712.
- 92 Mary Barrett₄, born February 28, 1713.
- 93 Rebecca Barrett₄, born February 26, 1716.
- 94 Josiah Barrett₄, born January 19, 1718.
- 95 Sarah Barrett₄, born August 4, 1720.
- (89) Mary (Dill) Barrett, wife of ⁵¹Josiah Barrett₃, died November 22, 1728.

JOSEPH AND MARY (TAYLOR) BARRETT. (52-96).

- (52) *Joseph Barrett*₃, son of ⁵Joseph₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, was married at Concord, Mass., March 24, 1714, to ⁹⁶Mary Taylor, daughter of ⁹⁷Samuel and ⁹⁸Mary (Robbins) Taylor of Concord, Mass.
- (96) Mary (Taylor) Barrett was born in Concord, Mass., October 27, 1688.
- (97) Samuel Taylor, father of ⁹⁶Mary (Taylor) Barrett, was born in Concord, Mass., June 21, 1656, and was the son of ⁹⁹James Taylor by his second wife ¹⁰⁰Elizabeth. ⁹⁹James Taylor, the father of ⁹⁷Samuel, first appears in Concord records in 1639. In 1641 he married ¹⁰¹Isabel Thompson, by whom he had two children. ⁹⁷Samuel Taylor, son of ⁹⁹James and ¹⁰⁰Elizabeth Taylor, was married at Concord, Mass., to ⁹⁸Mary Robbins of Concord, December 9, 1685.
- (52) *Joseph*₃ and ⁹⁶Mary (Taylor) Barrett had eight children, four sons and four daughters, all born in Chelmsford, Mass., viz:
- 102 Mary Barrett₄, born August 12, 1715. She married ¹⁰³Benjamin Chamberlain of Chelmsford, Mass.
- 104 Lydia Barrett₄, born September 22, 1717. She married ¹⁰⁵Job Spaulding.

- 111 Reuben Barrett₄, born 1730. (Day and month not given in the record).
- 112 Sarah Barrett₄ born February 8, 1731-2.

 1 January 7, Letters of Administration were granted on the estate of "⁵²Joseph Barrett₃ husbandman." to his widow ⁹⁶Mary Barrett. An agreement as to the care and division of the estate is signed by "the children of the deceased," viz: ¹⁰²Mary Barrett, ¹⁰⁸Joseph Barrett, ¹⁰⁹Nathaniel Barrett, a minor in his twenty-first year, ¹¹⁰Oliver Barrett, a minor in his seventeenth year, ¹¹¹Reuben Barrett, a minor in his fifteenth year, ¹¹²Sarah Barrett, a minor in her thirteenth year, the last four by their guardians, ¹⁰³Benjamin Chamberlain, ¹⁰⁵Job Spaulding and ¹⁰⁷Zachary Walker, the husbands respectively of ¹⁰²Mary Barrett, ¹⁰⁴Lydia Barrett, and ¹⁰⁶Martha Barrett.

The question arises here, Was it ⁵²Joseph Barrett₃, son of ⁵Joseph₂ son of ¹Thomas₁, who married ⁹⁶Mary Taylor, or was it ⁵⁵Joseph₄, son of ¹⁴John₃, son of ³John₂, son of ¹Thomas₁? Both of these ⁵²and ⁵⁵Josephs were born in 1690 and there were but a few months difference in their ages. I have no hesitation in stating that it is my opinion, based upon the records, and such facts as can be obtained, that it was ⁵²Joseph Barrett₃, son of ⁵Joseph₂ son of ¹Thomas₁ who married ⁹⁶Mary Taylor. My reason for this opinion and for placing the two ⁵²and ⁵⁵Josephs as I do in this tracing, are as follows, viz:

First—In several deeds of property and in the settlement of his estate, ⁵²Joseph₃, the father of ¹¹⁰Oli-ver Barrett₄, is called "yeoman" or "husbandman." In a joint deed given by ⁵⁵Joseph Barrett₄ and ⁵⁶Benjamin Barrett₄, the twins, to ¹¹³John Proctor, May 3, 1714, they are spoken of as "blacksmiths."

Second—⁵²Joseph Barrett₃, "husbandman", as executor of the estate of ⁵Joseph Barrett₂, "wheelwright", sells land which ⁵Joseph Barrett₂ had bought five years previously.

Third—⁵²Joseph Barrett₃, the father of ¹¹⁰Oliver Barrett₄, named one of his daughters Martha. There was a particular reason for this if we suppose him, ⁵²Joseph₃, to have been the son of ⁵Joseph₂ and Martha (Goole) (Gould) Barrett; but there was no special reason why ⁵⁵Joseph₄, the son of ¹¹John₃ and Dorothy (Proctor) Barrett, should confer that name upon one of his children.

And again, I can find no record of the marriage of ⁵⁵Joseph Barrett₄. If he was ever married there is no record of the birth of any children in Chelmsford, Mass. However, see ⁵⁵Joseph Barrett₄, supra.

Fourth—The property which ¹¹⁰Oliver Barrett₄ inherited from his father, ⁵²Joseph₃, was on "Robbins Hill." The only deed of property which we know of ⁵⁵Joseph₄ and ⁵⁶Benjamin Barrett₄, the twins, making, and of which there is any record in Middlesex County, was of certain land in the "Virginia Meadows," where their father, uncles and grandfather had considerable real property, as fully appears from the records of the Registry of Deeds, Middlesex County.

JOHN AND MARGARET (PARKER) BARRETT. (54-114).

- (54) John Barrett₄, son of ¹¹John₃, son of ³John₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, was married at Charlestown, Mass., November 29, 1705, to ¹¹⁴Margaret Parker, of Chelmsford, Mass., and had by her at Chelmsford, four children, one son and three daughters, viz:

- 115 Eleanor Barrett₅, born May 26, 1706. She died June 25, 1706.
- 116 Ezekiel Barrett₅, born September 18, 1709.
- 117 Sarah Barrett₅, born January 14, 1712.
- 118 Hannah Barrett₅, born October 10, 1714.

They, ⁵⁴John₄ and ¹¹⁴Margaret (Parker) Barrett, afterwards (May 1715) removed to Littleton, Mass., where they had five children, four sons and one daughter, viz:

- 119 Benjamin Barrett₅, born August 2, 1717.
- 120 Jonathan Barrett₅, born October 7, 1720.
- 121 Ellen Barrett₅, born June 17, 1723.
- 122 Lemuel Barrett₅, born September 7, 1726.
- 123 Oliver Barrett₅, born March 25, 1729.

(55) JOSEPH BARRETT₄ AND ⁵⁶BENJAMIN BARRETT₄.

Twin brothers, and sons of ¹¹John₃, son of ³John₂, son of ¹Thomas₁.

The only reference to these twin brothers to be found in any of the records of the towns of Chelmsford, Concord, Littleton, Acton or Billerica, or of Middlesex County records (Court, Probate or Registry of Deeds) except that of their birth, October 20, 1690, found in the old records of births of Chelmsford, is found in Book XXXII, fol. 525, of Middlesex County Registry of Deeds. From this record it appears that on the third day of May, 1714, ⁵⁶Benjamin₄ and ⁵⁵Joseph Barrett₄, "Blacksmiths," sold and conveyed to ¹¹³John Proctor fifteen acres of land in "Virginia Meadows." There is no release of dower in this deed, and as no wife or wives join in the deed, it is fair to presume that at this time, May 3, 1714, neither of them was married. There is not to be found at the present time, any record in Middlesex County, of the marriage or death of either of these twin brothers. Nor did they or either of them ever, after the date last mentioned, buy or sell any real estate in Middlesex County of which there is any record. It is therefore to be presumed that, soon after the date of the deed above referred to, both of these brothers moved from Middlesex County. No effort has been made to trace them outside of that County.

- (63) Jonathan Barrett₄, son of ¹⁵Jonathan₃, son of ³John₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, married for his first wife ¹²⁴Sarah (surname not now known), and by her he had two children, born in Chelmsford, one son and a daughter, viz:

 155 Samuel Barrett₅, born April 20, 1718. He married ¹⁵⁶Sarah Holden of Acton, Mass., October 29, 1749.
 157 Elizabeth Barrett₅, born November 6, 1721. She married ¹⁵⁸Eleazer Heald of Concord, Mass., January 11, 1745.

159 William Barrett₅, born December 4, 1724.

(80) Ephraim Barrett₄, son of ²¹Joseph₃, son of ³John₂, son of ¹Thomas₁.

I have been unable to find any record of the marriage or death of ⁸⁰Ephraim Barrett₄. His name does not appear in the records of Middlesex County but once besides that of his birth already noted. It appears upon the records of the Registry of Deeds, Book XXXII, Fol. 26, that on the 28th day of December, 1730, ⁸¹Sarah Barrett₄ sold and conveyed to her brother ⁸⁰Ephraim Barrett₄ "all her right," etc., in and to five acres of land in Chelmsford, that formerly belonged to her brother ⁸²Ebenezer₄.

(88) Thomas Barrett₄ died at Chelmsford, Mass., July 9, 1761.

JOSIAH AND ABIGAIL (GOFFE) BARRETT. (91-192).

- 196 Joseph Barrett₅, born June 30, 1744.

- (108) Joseph Barrett₄ married for his second wife ¹⁹⁹Mary (surname not now known), and had by her ²⁰⁰Molly Barrett₅, July 23, 1758.

NATHANIEL AND MARTHA (WHEELER) BARRETT.
 (109-201.)

- (109) Nathaniel Barrett₄ son of ⁵²Joseph₃, son of ⁵Joseph₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, was married at Acton, Mass., November 30, 1748, to ²⁰¹Martha Wheeler, and had by her at Westford, (Hodgman's History of Westford, page 437), at least three children, one son and two daughters, viz:

- 202 Mary Barrett₅, born in 1753, (month and day not given).
 203 Nathaniel Barrett₅, born in 1763, (month and day not given).
 204 Sarah Barrett₅, born in 1769, (month and day not given).

I do not vouch for the accuracy of the names and dates of birth of the children of ¹⁰⁹Nathaniel₄ and ²⁰¹Martha (Wheeler) Barrett, as given by Hodgman, for he adds: "There is evidence to show that they had also:

- A Ebenezer₅, born in 1762.
 B Jonathan₅.
 C Oliver₅, and perhaps others."

Now, with regard to these additional children that he ascribes to ¹⁰⁹Nathaniel₄, it is certain beyond question that the Ebenezer born in 1762, belongs to ¹¹⁰Oliver₄ and ²⁰⁵Anna (Fiske) Barrett, supra, as also does the son Oliver credited to ¹⁰⁹Nathaniel₄.

The genealogies given in Hodgman's History are very much condensed, generally without dates, and evidently prepared very hastily and with but little care. As a town history, Hodgman's work has but little value, and the genealogies given by him are, if possible, even less valuable, because of their general lack of sufficient dates and full names. In brief his genealogies are unreliable.

(For ¹¹⁰Oliver Barrett, see below, also p. 31 et seq.)

REUBEN AND SARAH (FLETCHER) BARRETT.

(111-205).

- (111) Reuben Barrett₄, son of ⁵²Joseph₄, son of ⁵Joseph₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, was married at Woburn, Mass., June 19, 1751, to ²⁰⁵Sarah Fletcher, of Chelmsford, and had by her at Groton, Mass., two sons, viz:

206 Reuben Barrett₅, born September 15, 1751.

207 Jesse Barrett₅. (Date of birth not recorded.)

- (111) Reuben Barrett₅ moved to Mason, N. H., where he died September 19, 1800, leaving two sons, ²⁰⁶Reuben₅ and ²⁰⁷Jesse₅. He may have had other children.

OLIVER AND ANNA (FISKE) BARRETT. (110-208).

- (110) *Oliver Barrett*₄, son of ⁵²Joseph₃, son of ⁵Joseph₂, son of ¹Thomas₁, was married at Lexington, Mass., October 24, 1754, to ²⁰⁸Anna Fiske, youngest daughter of ²⁰⁹Ebenezer and ²¹⁰Bethiah (Muzzy) Fiske, of Lexington, Mass.

- (208) Anna (Fiske) Barrett was born in Lexington, Mass., July 29, 1735.

THE FISKE FAMILY, OF LEXINGTON, MASS.

The genealogy of the Fiske family here given is taken from "Hudson's History of Lexington."

"There was," says ²¹¹Bond, in his history of Watertown, "a considerable number of early emigrants of the name of ²¹²Fiske, who settled in Massachusetts: and there is good reason to believe that they were all descendants of ²¹³Robert and ²¹⁴Sibyl (Gold) Fiske, who lived at Broad Gates, Loxfield, near Framingham, Suffolk, England.

- 215 “David Fiske₁ probably came over to America in 1636, and settled in Watertown, where he was admitted freeman, March, 1637.

“He was selectman in Watertown in 1640 and 1643. His will, dated September 10, 1660, and proved January 2, 1663, mentions no wife, but one daughter, ²¹⁶Fitch, and one son ²¹⁷David₂ ‘sole executor and residuary legatee, giving him his house, lands, cattle and chattels.’ August 6, 1673, his son sold his homestead and two other lots of land in Watertown to ²¹⁸John Cooledge.

- (217) “David Fiske₂, son of ¹David₁, was born in 1624. He was a ‘planter,’ and was admitted a freeman May 26, 1647; he settled, either at first or soon after, at Cambridge Farms, in which place he became a prominent citizen.

“He married for his first wife ²¹⁹Lydia Cooper, perhaps step-daughter of Deacon ²²⁰Gregory Stone, by whom he had three children.

“He married for his second wife ²²¹Seaborn Wilson, daughter of ²²²William Wilson, of Boston. He died February 14, 1710, his will, dated January 22, 1708, and proved December 20, 1711, mentions ‘wife ²²¹Seaborn, son (probably son-in-law) ²²³Nicholas Wyeth, my daughter being dead, children, ²²⁴David₃, ²²⁵Elizabeth₃ and ²²⁶Abigail₃; cousin ²²⁷Samuel Stone, son of Deacon ²²⁸Samuel Stone.’ Inventory of his estate, £405, 17s, 6d. October 16, 1676, he and his wife ²²¹Seaborn sold ²²⁹Samuel Page one hundred and forty-nine acres in Watertown, granted to his father ²⁰⁸David Fiske₁.

- (217) "David Fiske₂, or David Fiske₂, Sen., as he was designated in our early records, was not only one of the first settlers, but became one of the most prominent and useful men in the precinct.

"He headed the subscription for a meeting house in 1692, and on the organization of a parish a year after, he was chosen clerk, and one of the selectmen or assessors. He was also chosen chairman of a committee to purchase of the town of Cambridge a lot of land for the support of the ministry. These and similar offices he frequently held under the parish. He was also a member of the church organized in 1696, and his wife immediately after removed her relation from the church in Cambridge to the church gathered in the precinct. He not only served his fellow citizens in a civil and religious, but also in a military capacity, as appears by the prefix. Lient., which is often in the records connected with his name.

"He was also often employed by the colony as a surveyor.

"He resided on Hancock street near the present residence of ²³⁰Joseph F. Simonds.

"A handsome monument was erected in 1856, by ²³¹Benj. Fiske, Esq., with this inscription: 'In memory of ²¹⁷David Fiske, who died February 14, 1710, and his descendants.'"

DAVID AND LYDIA (COOPER) FISKE. (217-219).

- (217) David₂ and ²¹⁹Lydia (Cooper) Fiske had three children born in Lexington, two daughters and one son, viz:

232 Sarah Fiske₃, date of birth not recorded. She died in 1648.

233 Lydia Fiske₃, born September 29, 1647; died unmarried.

- 234 David Fiske₃, born September 1, 1648; died October 23, 1729, aged eighty-one years.

DAVID AND SEABORN (WILSON) FISKE. (217-221).

- 237 Anna Fiske₃, (Hannah) married ²³⁸Timothy Carter, son of ²³⁹Rev. Thomas Carter, first of Watertown, and afterwards of Woburn.
- (226) Abigail Fiske₃, married ²⁴⁰Henry Baldwin of Woburn.
- (224) David Fiske₃, married ²⁴¹Sarah (surname not known) who died April 22, 1729, aged 75 years.
- (224) David Fiske₃ died October 23, 1729. ²²⁴David Fiske₃, like his father, was a subscriber to the first meeting-house in 1692, and like his father was ready to sustain the institutions of religion, and was elected to the dignified office of tything-man.

DAVID AND SARAH () FISKE. (224-241).

- (224) David₃ and Sarah Fiske had eight children, four sons and four daughters, all born in Lexington, viz:
- 242 David Fiske₄, born January 5, 1675, married ²⁴³Elizabeth (surname not known).
- 244 Jonathan Fiske₄, born May 19, 1679.
- 245 Robert Fiske₄, born May 8, 1681, died April 18, 1753.

- 250 Abigail Fiske₄, born May 20, 1689, died August 13, 1691.
- (209) Ebenezer Fiske₄, born September 12, 1692.
- (209) Ebenezer Fiske₄, son of ²²⁴David₃, son of ²¹⁷David₂, son of ²¹⁵David₁, married December 4, 1718, for his first wife ²⁵¹Grace Harrington of Watertown, by whom he had a ²⁵²child₅, that died August 25, 1721; and she (²⁵¹Grace Harrington Fiske) died four days after, aged twenty-six years. He married for his second wife ²¹⁰Bethiah Muzzy, daughter of ²⁵³Benjamin and ²⁵⁴Sarah Muzzy. She (²¹⁰Bethiah Muzzy) died November 19, 1774, aged seventy-four years; and he (²⁰⁹Ebenezer Fiske) died December 19, 1775, aged eighty-three years, three months and seven days. The monumental stone in the Lexington old yard has the honorable prefix of "Lieut." to the name of Ebenezer Fiske. He appears to have been popular in his day, having been called to fill many offices in the town. He was selectman ten years between 1739 and 1758. He resided on the road to Concord, a little more than a mile from the Common, at the easterly side of a large swell of land, which from his residence and ownership has taken the name of "Fiske Hill." It was at this house that the gallant ²⁵⁵Hayward of Acton, met a British soldier coming from the well, between whom shots were exchanged, with fatal effect on both sides.
- (209) Ebenezer₄ and ²¹⁰Bethiah (Muzzy) Fiske, had nine children, five sons and four daughters, all born in Lexington, Mass., viz:
- 256 Sarah Fiske₅, baptized November 24, 1723.
- 257 Ebenezer Fiske₅, born March 5, 1726. He was a physician and settled at Epping, N. H.

- (208) Anna Fiske₅, born July 29, 1735, married October 24, 1744, ¹¹⁰Oliver Barrett₄ of Concord. (This is a mistake, it should be ¹¹⁰Oliver Barrett₄ of Chelmsford, Mass. Shattuck. Rev. Dr. Samuel Barrett, grandson of ¹¹⁰Oliver, Hodgman and others have fallen into the same error.)
- 264 Benjamin Fiske₅, born May 4, 1737, died young.
- 265 Samuel Fiske₅, born October 5, 1739. He graduated at Harvard College, 1759, and was an Episcopal clergyman in South Carolina. He died in 1777.

- April 23, 1759, ¹⁰⁹Nathaniel Barrett₄ of Westford, cooper, quitclaims to ¹¹⁰Oliver Barrett₄ of Chelmsford, cooper, "all his right, title," &c., in his honored mother's thirds of the estate of ⁵²Joseph Barrett₃, deceased." Book LXXV of Deeds, page 277.

September 29, 1767, ¹¹⁰Oliver Barrett₄ and wife, ²⁰⁸Anna Barrett, sold and conveyed to ²⁶⁹Jonas Marshall, for the sum of £293 6s 8d, fifty-seven acres of land on Robbins Hill, with dwelling house and cooper shop; also thirteen acres with dwelling house and barn. Book LXXVII of Deeds, page 363.

- (110) Oliver₄ and his wife ²⁰⁸Anna (Fiske) Barrett continued after their marriage to reside in Chelmsford until about the first of October, 1767, when, having sold their farm in Chelmsford, they removed to Billerica, Mass., where they resided until the autumn of 1770, a period of three years. In the autumn of 1770 they removed from Billerica to Westford, Mass., where they continued to reside until his death, October 7th, 1777.

- (110) Oliver Barrett₄ was called out as a "minute man" with other citizens of Westford and adjoining towns, on the occasion of the "Lexington alarm," and served one day as a member of the company commanded by Capt. ²⁷⁰Timothy Underwood of Westford, in the regiment commanded by Col. ²⁷¹William Prescott.

On the 2d day of January, 1777, he enlisted in the Revolutionary Army, as a volunteer from the town of Westford, and was mustered into the service as a member of the company commanded by Capt. ²⁷²Philip Thomas, in the Continental Regiment (10th Massachusetts, composed wholly of Massachusetts men) commanded by Col. ²⁷³Thomas Marshall, and served his country in the war of the Revolution from January 2d, 1777 to October 7, 1777, a period of nine months and five days, in the Northern Army (so called) under ²⁷⁴Gen. Gates, against the British forces under ²⁷⁵Gen. Burgoyne, and was killed in battle on that day (October 7, 1777) in one of the engagements which is usually designated as the second battle of Stillwater, and which finally resulted in the surrender, on the 17th day of October, 1777, of the British Army, commanded by ²⁷⁵Gen. Burgoyne to ²⁷⁴Gen. Gates, at Saratoga, N. Y.

He was fifty-one years, eight months and twenty-eight days old at the time of his death.

- (110) Oliver₄ and ²⁰⁸Anna (Fiske) Barrett had seven children, four sons and three daughters, viz:
- 276 Anna Barrett₅, born in Chelmsford, June 12, 1755.
- 277 Molly Barrett₅, born in Chelmsford, October 10, 1757.
- 278 Ebenezer Barrett₅, born in Chelmsford, March 10, 1762.
- 279 Oliver Barrett₅, born in Chelmsford, October 13, 1764.
- 280 Joseph Barrett₅, born in Chelmsford, September 2, 1767.
- 281 Benjamin Fiske Barrett₅, born in Billerica, January 16, 1770.
- 282 Bethiah Barrett₅, born in Westford, December 17, 1774.
- (208) Anna (Fiske) Barrett, widow of ¹¹⁰Oliver Barrett₄, married for her second husband, ²⁸³Lient. Moses Parker, some time in the latter part of 1779, the exact date I am unable to state, as there is no record of the marriage, but probably early in the month of September, 1779, as I find a record of their intention to marry—"Publication of notice of marriage"—under date of August 20, 1779.

There was no issue of this marriage.

She survived her second husband, living with her children, ²⁷⁸Ebenezer Barrett₅, at Wilton, N. H., and ²⁸²Bethiah (Barrett) Whitney at Winchendon, Mass., and died at the home of her youngest daughter, Mrs. ²⁸²Bethiah (Barrett) Whitney, in Winchendon, July 27, 1823, at the age of nearly eighty-eight years (eighty-seven years, eleven months and twenty-eight days).

There may be a slight uncertainty as to the date of her death, although I have given what I believe to be the correct date, viz: July 27, 1823. My uncle ⁵²³Oliver Barrett₆ of Wilton, son of ²⁷⁸Ebenezer₅ and grandson of ¹¹⁰Oliver₄ and ²⁰⁸Anna (Fiske) Barrett, had the record of July 27, 1823, while ⁸¹⁵Oliver Barrett₆ of Barre, Mass., son of ²⁸⁰Joseph₅, and also a grandson of ¹¹⁰Oliver₄ and ²⁰⁸Anna, had the record of August 25, 1823.

- (1115) Mrs. Louisa (Whitney) Lyman of Winchendon, youngest daughter of Phinehas and ²⁸²Bethiah (Barrett) Whitney, also a grand-daughter of ¹¹⁰Oliver₄ and ²⁰⁸Anna (Fiske) Barrett, writes to me under the date of January 29, 1886, that her grandmother ²⁰⁸Parker (Anna (Fiske) Barrett) died in Winchendon, Mass., at the home of her (Mrs. Lyman's) mother, ²⁸²Mrs. Bethiah (Barrett) Whitney, July 27, 1823; and inasmuch as her death occurred at Mrs. Lyman's home and within her recollection (she being a girl of eleven years), I am clearly of the opinion that the correct date is as I have given it, viz.: July 27, 1823.

The paternal and maternal ancestors of ²⁰⁸Anna (Fiske) Barrett, the Fiskes and the Muzzys, were among the earliest settlers of New England. They were distinguished for their intelligence, integrity and thrift. The names of the Fiskes and the Muzzys are frequently found in the early colonial records of New England towns among those who have held prominent positions of trust and honor in church and state. They left the imprint of their honorable lives and characters upon the perilous times in which they lived, and transmitted to a long line of descendants untarnished names and reputations and unsullied honor.

- (208) Anna (Fiske) Barrett was in many respects a very superior woman. She was small in stature, but was endowed with fine moral and intellectual qualities, and was possessed of a will power and determination which enabled her to overcome, what would seem to the woman of the present day, insurmountable obstacles. She was said to have been one of the brightest and handsomest women of her time.

The writer has frequently heard it stated by his ⁵²²father and his uncle ⁵²³Oliver₆, both of whom well remembered their grandmother—the former from the time she was sixty-five years of age, and the latter from the time she was sixty-eight or seventy, and who knew her well and intimately from that time until her decease in 1823, (after the death of ²⁶³Lieut. Parker, her second husband, she lived for several years with their father at Wilton)—that she was the most intelligent, the brightest, most cheerful and happy, and the handsomest old lady they ever saw.

At a little more than forty years of age she was left a widow, with a family of seven children, the eldest son (the writer's grandfather) a lad of but fifteen years of age, and the youngest child, a daughter, less than three years old. She cared for them all, giving to them the best education which the schools of that day and her limited means could afford, and by precept and example impressed upon them her high moral and religious convictions, and earnestly inculcated the necessity and duty of living sober, industrious and frugal lives.

She lived to see all of her children happily married, comfortably settled in life and surrounded by large families of children and grandchildren, all of whom loved and honored this brave, true, noble, loyal christian woman, too early widowed by the loss of her husband in one of the battles of the war for Independence, which gave to her and her children, and to their children, may we not hope, to the latest generation, a country and a name which to-day are the pride and boast of the civilized world. Great as must have been to her the loss of her husband and the father of her children, greater still was her and their gain in the achievement of that country's Independence for which the husband and father had fought and nobly and bravely died.

To ¹¹⁰Oliver, and ²⁰⁸Anna (Fiske) Barrett, we, their descendants, for whom and for whose information and gratification this monograph is written, owe this small tribute of respect. We honor their memory for what they were, for what they did and suffered, for what in their respective ways they aided in accomplishing, and for what they bequeathed to us, their descendants, as a common heritage, viz., pure and exemplary lives, honored names and noble examples in their loyalty to principle, justice, freedom and country.

For freedom and country he gave all that he had, his life; she, that which was as dear to her as life itself, a beloved husband, the father of her children.

- (277) Molly Barrett₅ was the second wife of ³³⁶Stephen Barrett, Jr.
It is not now known that ³³⁶Stephen Barrett, Jr.₅, and his wife ²⁷⁷Molly Barrett₅, were related by blood, although bearing the same name. It was always understood by their children and grandchildren that they were not so related. It is possible, however, that they may have been remotely related, possibly third or fourth cousins. I do not think they were related as remotely even as fourth cousins, as I have been unable to trace any relationship between ³³⁹Humphrey Barrett, of Concord, Mass., and ¹Thomas Barrett, of Braintree, Mass. It is proper, however, to here place upon record the fact that they, ³³⁶Stephen and ²⁷⁷Molly Barrett, neither knew of, nor acknowledged during their life-time, any blood relationship.

- (336) Stephen Barrett, Jr., was a farmer by occupation, and soon after his second marriage he removed to Winchendon, Mass., where he purchased a farm upon which he remained until late in the winter of 1789, when he sold it: and placing all his worldly estate upon a covered ox sled of the olden time, he started out with his wife, two children, the younger one less than a year old, and his aged mother, widow ³³⁸Elizabeth (Hubbard—How) Barrett, to try his fortune in the then almost unknown and but recently surveyed lands of Central New York.

This journey, with the means for traveling in use at that time, was a far greater and more difficult undertaking than a journey from Boston to San Francisco, or from New York City to Liverpool, is to-day, with steam power by rail or water; and the entire distance from Winchendon, Mass., to Utica, (then Fort Schuyler) New York, taking two weeks, was made with a sled and a yoke of oxen, he (Stephen Barrett) traveling most of the way on foot, driving his oxen—his mother, wife and children riding upon the sled.

The slow motion of the sled over the rough roads caused his wife a distressing sickness very similar to sea-sickness, and she was obliged to lie down upon the sled the greater part of the distance. At night, if they were fortunate enough to reach a settlement, they found rest and comfortable quarters in the house of some hospitable settler.

When he arrived at a point (Whiteboro) about three miles distant from Fort Schuyler (Utica) he halted, built a temporary log house, and remained there for a short time to rest. After he, and his family and team had rested, and sufficiently recovered their nearly exhausted strength, they continued their journey, until they reached Paris, Oneida County, New York, which was as far West as the Government surveys had at that time (1789) been made, where he purchased land, settled upon and cleared it, and became a permanent resident of Oneida County.

(These facts relating to the journey from Winchendon, Mass., to Paris, New York, are stated upon the authority of ⁴⁴⁶Mrs. Harriet B. (Reed) Pierce, a granddaughter now living, of ³³⁶Stephen₅ and ²⁷⁷Molly Barrett₅, who received the same from her grandmother ²⁷⁷Molly Barrett₅, and who now distinctly remembers the then to her thrilling story of the hardships and sufferings of that long and lonely journey through the wilderness to the new home in Oneida County, New York.)

(336) Stephen Barrett₅, was one of the earliest settlers of Paris, New York, his settlement there having been made early in the spring of 1789.

365 Child, the compiler of the Oneida County Gazetteer, for 1869, says: "The first settlement of Paris was made in March, 1789, by ³⁶⁶Capt. Rice, at Paris Hill. ³⁶⁷Benjamin Burns, Sr., and ³⁶⁸Jr., ³⁶⁹John Humaston, ³³⁶Stephen Barrett, ³⁷⁰Aaron Adams, and ³⁷¹Abel Simons, settled in the same neighborhood soon afterwards."

- (340) Potter in his "Genealogies" says: "He." ³³⁶Stephen Barrett₅, "was one of the original settlers in Paris, New York, being the third person to locate there in 1789. He remained in Paris six years, and moved to Sangerfield, N. Y."

He finally sold his farm in Paris, New York, and purchased another in Sangerfield, Oneida County, New York, to which he removed, and upon which he continued to live until his decease, in 1832. The farm in Sangerfield is said to have been a choice stock and dairy farm, the products thereof being always in great demand, and bringing more than the ordinary market price.

- (336) Stephen Barrett₅, was a successful and highly prosperous farmer. His well filled barns and granaries, his highly cultivated fields and neat stock were the pride of the town, if not the envy of his neighbors. He was a very active, intelligent, public spirited, liberal minded, generous, hospitable man. He took a deep interest in public affairs, and was a leading and prominent actor and an important factor in all matters, church as well as state, that concerned his town, county and state in those early days. He was one of the selectmen of Paris, and he was also a Justice of the Peace of Mohawk. He served as a soldier for three years in the Revolutionary War; had the respect and confidence of all who knew him; was a good citizen, a kind neighbor, an indulgent and affectionate husband and father, an earnest and sincere Christian; in short, he was a model man.

The following lines, copied from the inscription upon his tombstone in the old cemetery at Sangerfield, New York, by his nephew, ⁹⁶⁰George Barrett, Esq., of South Valley, New York, and by him kindly sent to me, are here inserted, not for their poetical value, but as indicative, in some measure, at least, of the character of the man:

"Here lies an Oneida County Pioneer,
 "To his friends and family dear;
 "When the country was new,
 "And its inhabitants few,
 "And Eastern Yankee bands
 "Were hunting wild lands,
 "And strangers were plenty,
 "And accommodations were scanty,
 "His table was spread to the needy
 "And his house was open to the weary."

- (277) Molly Barrett⁵, the wife of ³³⁶Stephen Barrett, Jr.⁵, was brought up in the family of her grandfather, ²⁰⁹Lieut. Ebenezer Fiske, of Lexington, Mass., and was living with them at Lexington on the 19th day of April, 1775, when the British troops under ³⁷²Col. Smith and ³⁷³Major Pitcairn marched from Boston through Lexington to Concord, under orders from ³⁷⁴Gen. Gage, the British commander in Boston, to destroy the public stores supposed to be collected at Concord.

She (Molly Barrett) was at that time about eighteen years of age, and to her last day distinctly remembered the tragic scenes and thrilling and bloody events of that momentous day, and never wearied of repeating them to her children and grandchildren.

- (446) Mrs. Harriet B. (Reed) Pierce remembers the story of that day as told to her by her grandmother ²⁷⁷Molly Barrett.

When the approach of the British troops early in the morning became known in Lexington village, ²⁰⁹Lieut. Ebenezer Fiske, then an old man, nearly eighty-three years of age, with the women and children of his household, fled to a place of safety and secreted themselves during the day, or until after the British troops—so valiant, boastful, insolent and bloodthirsty on that fateful morning, when they met ³⁷⁵Capt. John Parker's company of minute men drawn up in line on Lexington Common; who bravely refused to obey when insolently ordered by ³⁷³Major Pitcairn to "Disperse, rebels, disperse!" and without fear and without flinching received that volley of musketry which instantly killed seven, and wounded ten more of that patriot band who "Poured out their blood like water before they knew whether it would fertilize a land of freedom or a land of bondage"—had been foiled in their purpose to sack and destroy the public stores at Concord, and had been routed and defeated; and pursued, harrassed, exhausted, overcome with heat and thirst, and with broken and bleeding ranks, had sulkily retreated through the town, protected by the troops and field pieces sent out under ³⁷⁶Earl Percy to re-enforce them.

When ²⁰⁹Lieut. Fiske and his family returned to their home in the afternoon, they found the two dead soldiers—the British soldier at the well near the house, and young ³⁷⁷Hayward at the door of the house, where he had fallen, killed by the British soldier, whom he had at the same instant fatally shot.

It was at the house of ²⁷⁷Molly Barrett's grandfather, ²⁰⁹Lieut. Ebenezer Fiske, that this famous encounter occurred. The spot has been carefully marked and its fame will be perpetuated by a memorial stone; a rough stone, (except the face which is hammered for the inscription,) which the town of Lexington has caused to be placed in the wall in front of the house formerly owned and occupied by ²⁰⁹Lieut. Ebenezer Fiske, now owned and occupied by ³⁷⁸Mr. Dudley.

- (277) Mrs. Molly Barrett is remembered by her grandchildren as a woman of marked character, active, earnest, comely, very energetic and intelligent, a thrifty and tidy housewife, a model of neatness and propriety, and a sincere and devoted Christian woman.
- (446) Mrs. Harriet B. (Reed) Pierce, the grand-daughter of ²⁷⁷Molly Barrett, was, after the death of her father, April 3, 1818 (her mother, ³⁸⁰Betsy (Barrett) Reed, died on the 28th day of January, 1815, when Mrs. Pierce was but little more than five years of age)—brought up by her grand-parents, with whom she lived until her marriage to ⁴⁴⁸Rev. John Davis Pierce in 1833. She says: "Grandmother Molly Barrett was a remarkably pious woman; she was very conscientious in the observance of the Sabbath, also in her attendance upon and her discharge of her religious duties, and in the study of her bible and hymn book. I never knew a person of such keen and just moral sensibilities. She excelled in grace and goodness and was the possessor of a most sweet and happy disposition."

REV. JOHN DAVIS AND HARRIET B. (REED)
PIERCE. (448-446).

(446) Harriet B. Reed, only daughter of ⁴⁴³Calvin and ³⁸⁰Betsy (Barrett) Reed, was married at Waterville, New York, March 13, 1833, to ⁴⁴⁸Rev. John Davis Pierce of Marshall, Calhoun County, Michigan.

(448) Rev. John Davis Pierce, son of ⁴⁴⁹Gad and ⁴⁵⁰Sarah (Davis) Pierce, was born in Chesterfield, Cheshire County, New Hampshire, February 18, 1797.

His father removed from Paxton, Worcester County, Massachusetts, to Chesterfield, New Hampshire, only a short time previous to his (John Davis Pierce) birth. He died when his son ⁴⁴⁸John Davis Pierce, was only two years old. Immediately after his father's death he (the son) was taken back to Paxton, Massachusetts, where he was brought up in the family of his uncle, a brother of his father.

His mother ⁴⁵⁰Sarah Davis, was a descendant of ⁴⁵¹Dolour Davis, of Concord, Massachusetts.

- (448) John Davis Pierce prepared for college under the instruction of ⁴⁵²Rev. Enoch Pond, of Ware, Massachusetts, and entered Brown University, Providence, Rhode Island, in 1818, and was graduated from that Institution in the class of 1822, with high honors and with a reputation for scholarship and solid attainments, second to no one in his class. After his graduation he taught one year as principal of Wrentham Academy, Wrentham, Massachusetts.

In 1823, he entered the Princeton Theological Seminary at Princeton, New Jersey, continued his theological studies there one year, and completed them with ⁴⁵³Prof. Park of Andover, Massachusetts, and was then licensed to preach by the Congregational Association of Worcester County, Massachusetts.

In 1825 he was called by, and settled as pastor over, the Congregational Church in Sangerfield, Oneida County, New York. His pastoral connection with this church continued for a period of about four years (until 1829) to the satisfaction of church and pastor, when it was mutually dissolved. In 1830 he became connected with the academy at Goshen, Connecticut, for one year as its principal. ⁴⁴⁸Rev. Mr. Pierce in the spring of 1831, removed from Goshen to Marshall, Calhoun County, Michigan, and entered upon his new field of labor as home missionary. On the 1st day of July, 1831, he preached the first sermon ever preached in that county, and there he continued his Christian work as minister, missionary, and an organizer of churches, in which work he was very successful.

He continued to labor in the ministry at Marshall until the organization of the State government of Michigan. July 26, 1836, when he was appointed Superintendent of Public Instruction.

His first report clearly demonstrated the wisdom of his appointment. He laid and firmly established the foundation of the Common School and University system of education of Michigan, which is to-day unexcelled by that of any other State in the Union.

The State of Michigan at an early day wisely provided for the education of her children, and as a perpetual fund for that purpose, caused to be set aside the proceeds of the sale of a million (1,000,000) acres of land. This immense domain was committed to the control and management of the ⁴⁴⁸Rev. Mr. Pierce; and at the expiration of his term of office it was said of him, that, so carefully and wisely had he administered and executed that great trust, not one dollar of the school fund had been squandered or lost. There is hardly a thing that is considered to-day characteristic of the Michigan school system, but that was boldly planned or prophetically outlined by him in his reports to the legislature of that State, and that, too, at a time when there was not in all the country a State University, a State Teachers' Association, a Normal School, or anything like organic and developed system in school work. ⁴⁵⁴Horace Mann was just about taking his place at the head of the Massachusetts public schools, and ⁴⁵⁵John A. Dix was Superintendent of Public Instruction in New York. Mr. Pierce proved himself the equal of either in the clear foresight with which he surveyed the field and laid out the work in Michigan.

The State of Michigan, to-day, is largely indebted to his sound judgment and wise foresight for its great University, which ranks among the foremost of the educational institutions of the country. He was privileged above most men in being permitted to live until he saw his expectations fully realized in the growth and development of the University, as the capstone of the educational structure of the State. In 1847 he was elected a member of the State House of Representatives, and as chairman of the committee on federal relations, he introduced and succeeded in carrying a resolution instructing the Michigan delegation in the National Congress to oppose the introduction of slavery into the territories. At this session, too, he proposed and carried the homestead exemption law, which is said to have been the first law of the kind ever enacted in the United States, but which afterwards found a place upon the statute books of nearly every state in the Union. In 1850 he was elected a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of which he was an active, influential and most useful member.

His subsequent labors in the various departments of state and public instruction down to a comparatively late date, were numerous and important. In fact, he was, for more than half a century, directly and intimately connected with educational work, and he is called the father of the Michigan Common School System; and during this long period he also continued his ministerial labors over different churches and people, and built for himself, by his unselfish devotion to the best and highest interests of his fellow men, a monument of honor more enduring than bronze or stone.

He was married three times, first to ⁴⁵⁶Millecent Estabrook of Holden, Massachusetts. She died two years after her marriage. There was no issue of this marriage. His second wife was ⁴⁵⁷Mary Ann Cleveland, of Madison, New York. The issue of this (the second marriage) was two children, viz:

458 James Stewart Pierce, born in Sangerfield, New York, December 14, 1829.

459 Ann Millecent Pierce, born in Madison, Michigan, May 30, 1831.

He died at Medford, Mass., where he was visiting at the home of his youngest daughter, and only surviving child, ⁴⁶⁷Mrs. Mary Ann (Pierce) Emerson, on the fifth day of April, 1882, at the age of eighty-five years, one month and eighteen days.

Mrs. Pierce is a highly educated and accomplished lady, and was a suitable companion for her distinguished and honored husband, with whom she passed nearly half a century of the pleasantest portion of her life; and now while in the "sere and yellow leaf," surrounded by all the comforts and luxuries which a devoted and loving daughter can bestow, she calmly and contentedly contemplates, with feelings of just pride and admiration, the great work accomplished by her beloved husband for the cause of religion and education, by his untiring and invaluable labors of more than half a century.

WILLIAM BARRETT REED. (447).

(447) William Barrett Reed, only son of ⁴⁰⁶Calvin and ³⁴⁵Betsy (Barrett) Reed was born in Waterville, N. Y., January 3, 1813.

He was prepared for college at Hamilton, Madison County, N. Y., and entered Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., in 1833, and was graduated therefrom with high honors, in the class of 1837. Soon after his graduation he went to Richmond, Virginia, where he taught for some time in a Ladies' Seminary, of which ⁴⁷⁸Prof. William McKenzie was the principal; meanwhile he attended medical lectures at the Hampden Sydney Medical College of Richmond, Virginia, from which he was graduated and received his medical diploma in 1841.

As evidence of the high esteem in which ⁴⁴⁷Dr. Reed was held by the faculty of the Hampden Sydney Medical College, I am permitted to insert here a copy of a letter of recommendation, given to him by one of his instructors. a professor in the Medical College, a short time before he left Richmond for his new home in Amherst, Mass.

“RICHMOND, April 12th, 1842.

- (447) “Dr. Wm. B. Reed has been a student of medicine in the Medical College of Hampden Sydney for the last three years, and during a portion of the time resident student of the Richmond Almshouse, as well as a constant attendant upon the clinical instructions of the College Infirmary, and a most diligent dissector. To those who are acquainted with Dr. Reed's habits I need not say he has been most assiduous in his studies: but it is just that I should bear testimony to his accomplishments as an anatomist. I have never known but a single person of the age of Dr. Reed, who was so thoroughly grounded in anatomical studies, both theoretical and practical, as he is. Dr. Reed, by his skill and attentions, endeared himself to the paupers of our Almshouse, and his practice was through Providence blessed by signal success.

“Language is almost incapable of expressing the friendly feelings I entertain towards Dr. Reed, and of course it is useless for me to attempt further recommendation.

“⁴⁷⁹TH. JOHNSON, M. D.,

Immediately after his graduation he was tendered a high position in the hospital at Richmond, which he declined in order to go into practice at Amherst, Mass., as a partner with ⁴⁵⁰Dr. Sellon of that place. Dr. Reed went to Amherst in June, 1842, and there commenced the practice of his profession as a partner of Dr. Sellon. After his death, Dr. Reed succeeded to the large practice of Drs. Sellon & Reed. He rose rapidly in his profession, in which he was eminently successful both as a physician and a surgeon; and at the time of his death in 1846, although but thirty-three years of age, he had easily, by his sterling ability, uniform success, faithfulness to duty and devotion to his patients, placed himself in the front rank of his profession.

Dr. Reed's constitution (never very strong or rugged) was severely taxed by his professional labors, and was slowly but steadily undermined until in December, 1846, it yielded, and he gave up his life, so full of hope and high promise, falling a victim to that ever to be dreaded disease, consumption.

His last days, like his first, were peaceful and happy, and were spent among the familiar faces and scenes of his boyhood at Waterville, N. Y., where he died, December 6, 1846, aged thirty-three years, eleven months and three days.

Dr. Reed is said by those who knew him, and who now remember him, to have been a brilliant man, of scholarly tastes and attainments, of a lovable disposition, and with sentiments as pure and refined, and sympathies as tender, as those of a woman.

By his daughter (⁴⁸²Mrs. Messenger) it is truly said that his most precious legacy to his family is the record of a noble Christian life and character.

ZIMRI AND PERSIS (BATCHELDER) BARRETT.

(522-605).

(522) Zimri Barrett son of ²⁷⁸Ebenezer and ⁵¹⁸Jane (Reed) Barrett, was married at Wilton, N. H., September 30, 1830, to ⁶⁰⁵Persis Batchelder, eldest daughter of ⁶⁰⁶Daniel and ⁶⁰⁷Persis (Maynard) Batchelder of Wilton, N. H.

(606) Daniel Batchelder was born in Wilton, N. H., May 15, 1781. He died at Wilton, N. H., May 28, 1853, aged seventy-two years and thirteen days.

He received the limited education at that time to be obtained in the common schools of New Hampshire, but made the best use of the advantages offered to him. He was a very strong minded, clear headed, independent, resolute man; thoroughly honest in his convictions, and of the strictest integrity. He was easily the foremost man of his native town during his lifetime, and was always recognized as such. He took an active interest in public affairs, town, state and national, and was thoroughly informed upon all the leading questions of the day. He was a great reader, and read well and understandingly: he had a very retentive memory and always remembered what he read. He was an active partisan of the Jeffersonian and Jacksonian school. He was honored by his fellow townsmen with offices of trust, confidence and responsibility more frequently, perhaps, than any other citizen of Wilton in his time. He was frequently elected a member of the board of selectmen, and was often chairman of the board. He was several times elected to represent Wilton in the New Hampshire House of Representatives, and was also elected and served as a member of the State Senate. He was frequently elected to preside over the deliberations of the town meetings, and made an excellent presiding officer. His domestic and social relations were of the pleasantest. He was a patriotic and public spirited citizen, a good neighbor, a kind and indulgent father and a devoted husband. He was a farmer of frugal and industrious habits; was temperate when it was the custom for everybody to indulge more or less in spirituous liquors; and for many years, during the latter portion of his life, he was a total abstinence man. Living, he was respected and honored by all who knew him; dead, he has left a name and character without a spot or blemish.

(607) Persis Maynard, wife of ⁶⁰⁶Daniel Batchelder, was born in Temple, N. H., April 10, 1782. She died at Wilton, N. H., August 18, 1850, aged sixty-eight years, three months and eight days. She was bright-minded, active, and intelligent, a neat house-keeper, a kind mother, a devoted wife, and a sincere and earnest Christian woman, loved and respected by all who came within the circle of her acquaintance.

(604) Persis Batchelder, the eldest child and daughter of ⁶⁰⁶Daniel and ⁶⁰⁷Persis (Maynard) Batchelder, was born in Wilton, N. H., May 31, 1808. She received the best education that could be obtained in the common schools of her native town, and was a fine scholar (reputed to be one of the best in the town). She taught school before her marriage, and was a successful teacher. She inherited much of her father's strength of mind, independence and firmness of character, and also very much of his interest in public affairs. She possesses a strong, logical and cultivated mind, and has always kept herself thoroughly informed upon the great questions of the day: religious, moral and political, and is thoroughly conversant with them. She has a reten-tive memory and is possessed of unusual argumentative powers, and when called upon to exercise them, she seldom comes off vanquished. She would wish to apply the test of truth, right and justice to all questions of political, religious, moral and social action, and her standard of truth, right and justice is very high. The writer, with due filial and reverent deference and respect, submits that his mother's standard will not probably be reached until the day of the Millenium shall come. She is now, at seventy-nine years of age, quite active and strong for one of her years; looking upon the bright side of everything, and sincerely believing that all things are divinely and wisely ordered; every cloud has for her its silver lining, and she will continue to enjoy life so long as the power to enjoy it shall remain to her. To her husband she was an affectionate and devoted wife; to her children, living and dead, she has ever been kind, indulgent and affectionate. Her faith and trust in a future life are strong and well founded, for they are the faith and trust of a sincere, earnest, reasoning Christian woman. She resides at Wilton, N.H., with her only surviving daughter. ⁶¹²Mrs. Nancy Elizabeth (Barrett) Baldwin.

(522) Zimri Barrett was a farmer by occupation and owned and cultivated one of the best and most productive farms in Wilton. The farm upon which the writer was brought up, and upon which he worked until he was twenty-two years of age (when not at school or in college), then owned by his father, is now largely covered with business blocks and residences of a large and thriving village, and is the center of large manufacturing, agricultural and commercial industries.

(522) Zimri Barrett was honest, intelligent and upright, a good citizen, a kind neighbor, an indulgent husband and father, a solid, substantial, moral and liberal minded man, and was highly respected by all who knew him. His word was as good as his bond.

He died at Wilton, N. H., May 3, 1860, aged sixty four years and six months.

(522) Zimri and ⁶⁰⁵Persis (Batchelder) Barrett had five children, all born in Wilton, N. H., two sons and three daughters, viz:

608 Samuel Barrett₇, born August 7, 1831.

609 Persis Jane Barrett₇, born August 11, 1832.

610 Almira Barrett₇, born October 25, 1833. She died unmarried, at Wilton, N. H., October 4, 1855, aged twenty-one years, eleven months and ten days.

611 William Barrett₇, born July 2, 1836.

612 Nancy Elizabeth Barrett₇, born September 29, 1838.

(608) Samuel Barrett, eldest son of ⁵²²Zimri and ⁶⁰⁵Persis (Batchelder) Barrett, was educated at the public schools at Wilton, N. H., and Boston, Mass. He is a very efficient and successful business man, and a man of unquestioned uprightness and integrity, independent and resolute, both in thought and action. He has been honored by his fellow townsmen with many offices of trust and responsibility. He was for many years town treasurer, town clerk, moderator, and for two years represented the town of Wilton in the State House of Representatives. He has been, since its organization, one of the trustees of the Wilton Savings Bank. He has been engaged in railroad business for many years (since 1852 or 1853) and is now, and for several years past has been, the general freight agent of the Concord, N. H., Railroad and branches. He has honestly, efficiently and ably discharged every public and private trust committed to him. He has the confidence and respect of all who know him. He resides at Concord, N. H.

- (609) Persis Jane Barrett, the eldest daughter of ⁵²²Zimri and ⁶⁰⁵Persis (Batchelder) Barrett, was educated at the public schools at Wilton and at Groton Academy, Groton, Mass. She was possessed of an amiable and sweet disposition, and had many attractive personal qualities. She was for many years librarian of the public library of Wilton, and it was largely through her earnest personal efforts that, at the time it was destroyed by fire, some two or three years before her decease, it had become one of the largest and best selected of the town libraries in the State.

She died, unmarried, at Wilton, N. H., February 27, 1886, aged fifty-three years, six months and sixteen days.

(611) William Barrett, the second son of ⁵²²Zimri and ⁶⁰⁵Persis (Batchelder) Barrett, was prepared for college at Appleton Academy, Mount Vernon, Hillsborough County, New Hampshire, and at Lowell, Mass., under the instruction of ⁶²⁰Hon. George Stevens, A. M.

He entered Harvard University with the class of 1855, and was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1859.

He studied law in the office of ⁶²¹Hon. Aaron P. Hughes, Nashua, Hillsborough County, New Hampshire, and one year in the law school of Harvard University.

He was admitted to the bar (Suffolk County bar) in Boston, Mass., May, 1861.

He was elected in March, 1861, to represent his native town, Wilton, N. H., in the House of Representatives. He served one term, and at the expiration of the session of the Legislature in July, 1861, he located at Nashua, N. H., and commenced the practice of his profession. He continued to reside in Nashua and practice law until June, 1876, when he removed to St. Paul, Ramsey County, Minnesota, where he now resides.

During his residence in Nashua, N. H., he was elected City Solicitor, and served one term. He was also elected a member of the superintending school committee of that city, and served one term, declining a re-election.

He was for several years elected moderator of the ward in which he resided in Nashua.

He was one of the originators of the Nashua public library, and was elected a member of the first board of trustees, which position he continued to hold until he removed to St. Paul. He was from the first a member of the library purchasing committee, and largely selected the books purchased for the library during his connection with it. He feels a great pride (pardonable he trusts) in the success of the Nashua public library, an institution to which he has given very many days of thought and labor. From nothing he has seen it grow until it has become a power for good in the community.

In 1871 he was appointed, by the Governor of New Hampshire, County Solicitor of Hillsborough County, and served in, and discharged the duties of, that office for the full term of five years.

It has been said of him by those who ought to know—his associates at the bar and judges upon the bench, whose opinions are entitled to great weight—that he was an able, efficient and most successful prosecuting officer. His county (Hillsborough) was the largest and most populous county in the State, embracing within its territorial limits the two largest cities in the State (Manchester and Nashua). A large number of indictments, including every grade of crime from simple larceny to that of murder in the first degree (in several instances) were found by the grand jury at each one of the three terms of court held in that county every year. During the five years he held the office of county solicitor he never failed, except in a single instance, in securing a conviction of the person or persons charged with crime. He prosecuted and secured the first conviction and sentence in New Hampshire, of a person charged with the doubly revolting crime of abortion. This crime is one, it is believed, of frequent commission, but very difficult to be proven. Within two or three years prior to the prosecution and conviction referred to, there had been in other counties in the State five different indictments and unsuccessful prosecutions for the same crime. Since that conviction, an indictment for that crime has rarely been found. He successfully prosecuted and convicted the only person, ⁶²²Elwin W. Major, a resident of his native town (Wilton, N. H.) ever charged with the crime of murder. (Major was not a native of Wilton). He (Major) went to Wilton about 1868 and engaged himself as a farm hand to one of the most respectable and reputable citizens of Wilton. Major was a person of good personal appearance, bright and intelligent, and soon won the affection of one of his employer's daughters, and married her. In about five years after his marriage, having become enamored with another woman, he administered poison (strychnia) to his wife, from the effects of which she died. For the murder of his young wife, (she was only eighteen years of age at the time of her death), Major was indicted, tried, convicted, sentenced to be hung, and on the 5th day of January, 1877, expiated his great crime upon the gallows. The evidence upon which Major was convicted was wholly circumstantial; but such was the care and skill with which the case was prepared, commencing with the post mortem examination conducted under the Solicitor's personal supervision and direction, and such were the pains taken to secure a careful and conclusive analysis of the body, and such the professional character and eminence of the medical experts, that the Major case has become one of the leading cases of strychnia poisoning in the legal and medical profession.

In 1871 he was appointed by ⁶²³Hon James A. Weston, Governor of New Hampshire, a member of his staff, with the rank of Colonel.

In September, 1882, he was appointed by ⁶²⁴Honorable Edmund Rice, Mayor of the City of St. Paul, a member of the Board of Public Works of that city, to fill out an unexpired term.

In March, 1883, he was re-appointed by the mayor a member of said Board for the full term of three years. In 1885 he was elected president of the Board of Public Works; and on the 7th day of March, 1886, he was again re-appointed a member of said Board for the full term of three years, and was again elected president of the Board. He has taken an active interest in Masonry, and has been honored with the highest offices in the gift of the various Masonic bodies of which he is a prominent member. He has been G. M. of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire; Grand H. P. of Grand Royal Arch Chapter of New Hampshire; G. C. of the Grand Commandery of that State; and a D. I. G. 33° of the A. & A. S. R. of Masonry for the northern jurisdiction of the United States.

OLIVER AND ELIZABETH (CARLETON) BARRETT.
(279-680).

- (279) Oliver Barrett₅, the second son of ¹¹⁰Oliver₄ and ²⁰⁸Anna (Fiske) Barrett, was born in Chelmsford, Mass., October 13, 1764.

Some years after his father's death (killed in the second battle of Stillwater, October 7, 1777), Oliver Barrett, Jr., was bound out by his guardian, ⁶⁸¹Capt. Aaron Parker, of Westford, Mass., to learn the trade of a house carpenter. Having served his term as an apprentice and learned his trade, he worked as a house carpenter in Westford, Chelmsford, Lexington and Charleston, Mass., until the spring of 1790, when he went to Maine, which was at that time a part of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and then known as the "District of Maine."

(The second charter of Massachusetts Bay, 1691, incorporated the provinces of Maine and Arcadia or Nova Scotia, with the colonies of Massachusetts Bay and Plymouth, into "One Royal Province of Massachusetts Bay." The right of government thus acquired over the "District of Maine" was exercised by Massachusetts until 1819, a period of one hundred and twenty-eight years).

- (279) Oliver Barrett₅, first located in the town of New Castle, Lincoln County, Maine, and worked at his trade as a house carpenter. There is some evidence that he also worked as a ship carpenter a portion of the time between 1790 and 1800.

He was married at Pownalborough, Lincoln County, Maine, in the last part of 1791, to ⁶⁸⁰Elizabeth Carleton, daughter of ⁶⁸²Joseph and ⁶⁸³Elizabeth Carleton of Pownalborough. The exact date of this marriage I am unable to state. I have not been able to find any record of it, but I find in the town records of New Castle, under date of November 26, 1791, that ²⁷⁹Oliver Barrett₅, of New Castle was published to be married to ⁶⁸⁰Elizabeth Carleton of Pownalborough, Maine. I think it is more than probable, therefore, that he was married sometime in the following month, December, 1791.

Pownalborough at that time embraced a portion of the territory now within the limits of the towns of Alna and Dresden. The present town of Dresden and the west part of Alna constitute the old town of Pownalborough. That portion of the old town of Pownalborough which now forms the west part of the town of Alna, was, for a time, at a date subsequent to the marriage of ²⁷⁹Oliver Barrett₅, to ⁶⁸⁰Elizabeth Carleton, called New Milford and still later, as at the present time, Alna.

The old records of the town of Pownalborough, in which, (since the parents of ⁶⁸⁰Elizabeth Carleton lived, and she was married, there,) without doubt, the marriage of ²⁷⁹Oliver and ⁶⁸⁰Elizabeth (Carleton) Barrett was recorded, were destroyed by fire some thirty years ago.

The records of the town of New Castle show that ²⁷⁹Oliver Barrett, after his marriage, continued to own real property in that town, for which he was taxed, as late as 1794, although it is probable that he did not reside there many months, if at all, after this marriage. This would appear to be so from the fact that three of his children were born in New Milford (Alna). He continued to work at his trade as a house carpenter at New Milford and in the adjoining towns for quite a number of years, even after he purchased a farm and improved it. He resided at New Milford (Alna) until early in the year 1798, when he removed to Dresden.

In December (25th), 1794, after having sold his property in New Castle, he purchased a farm of one hundred acres, more or less, situated in Dresden, of ⁶⁸⁴Mr. William Gardiner. This farm he subsequently (August 26, 1796) sold to ⁶⁸⁵Mr. David Blenn, and is now owned and cultivated by his grandson, ⁶⁸⁶Mr. Zina H. Blenn, of Dresden, to whom I am indebted for some of the facts here stated.

June 19, 1798, ²⁷⁹Oliver Barrett purchased of ⁶⁸⁷Mr. William Kendall, another farm in Dresden, to which he immediately removed his family, and upon which he erected a substantial frame house, barns and other buildings. In this house, now standing in a good state of preservation upon the same spot on which it was erected nearly ninety years ago, and upon this farm, six of his nine children were born and remained with him until they became of age. This house has been somewhat remodeled and renovated, but is still "The old house and the old home." The barns erected on this farm were struck by lightning in the autumn of 1885 and destroyed, together with all their contents of hay and grain. He continued to reside upon and to cultivate this farm until the autumn of 1838, a period of more than forty years. All his children having then grown up, married and left "The old homestead," he sold it and removed to Hallowell, Maine, in order that he and his wife might be near their daughter ⁶⁹⁰Mrs. Sarah Hodge (Barrett) Hubbard, wife of ⁷¹⁵Dr. John Hubbard, afterwards for three successive terms (1850-1853) elected Governor of the State, and spent their declining years in the enjoyment of well earned ease and quiet, free from labor and care.

- (279) Oliver Barrett was what people call "a well-to-do-man," prosperous and successful, a good and public spirited citizen, a kind and affectionate husband and an indulgent father.

He was highly esteemed by his neighbors and fellow townsmen for his uprightness and integrity of character. He was several times chosen one of the "selectmen," by whom the affairs of the town were managed, and was, for many years a member of the school committee of his district.

- (279) Oliver Barrett, died at Hallowell, Maine, December 18, 1843, aged seventy-nine years, two months and five days.

- (680) Elizabeth (Carleton) Barrett was born in Pownalborough, Maine, February 2, 1774.

Her only surviving son, ⁶⁹⁵Rev. Benjamin Fiske Barrett, has kindly furnished the following brief sketch of his mother:

"She inherited an uncommonly robust constitution, remarkable power of physical endurance, and great energy of character. Her natural capacities were considerably above the average. The advantages of female education in the District of Maine, at that early period, were comparatively few and meagre: but she made the most of those within her reach. She was an industrious, frugal, kind-hearted, benevolent woman, a faithful wife and most devoted mother. She spun or wove with her own hands most of the linen, cotton and woollen cloths used in the family for the first fifteen years of her married life, and often sat up all night to wash, repair and iron her children's clothes, that they might attend school or church the next day looking neat and clean—for two suits apiece could hardly be afforded then. She was always the friend of the needy and helpless, and ever ready to assist the unfortunate or those who were in want. In brief, she was a model New England housewife, a kind friend and neighbor, and a sincere, earnest, exemplary Christian woman."

- (680) Elizabeth (Carleton) Barrett, widow of ²⁷⁹Oliver Barrett, died at Hallowell, Maine, June 19, 1865, aged ninety-one years, four months and seventeen days.
- (279) Oliver and ⁶⁸⁰Elizabeth (Carleton) Barrett had nine children, six sons and three daughters, viz:
- 688 Ebenezer Barrett₆, born in New Milford (Alna), Maine, December 18, 1792. He died in infancy.
- 689 Henry Carleton Barrett₆, born in New Milford (Alna), Maine, December 18, 1793.

- 695 Benjamin Fiske Barrett₆, born in Dresden, Maine, June 24, 1808.
- 696 Mary Ann Barrett₆, born in Dresden, Maine, April 23, 1812.

HENRY CARLETON AND ELIZABETH (MESERVE)
BARRETT. (689-697).

- (689) Henry Carleton Barrett⁶, the second son of ²⁷⁹Oli-ver and ⁶⁸⁹Elizabeth (Carleton) Barrett, was born in New Milford (Alna), Lincoln County, Maine, December 18, 1793. He was married at Dresden, Maine, in 1815, to ⁶⁸⁷Elizabeth Meserve of Dresden. He died in San Francisco, California, November 16, 1869, aged seventy-five years, ten months and twenty-eight days.
- (697) Elizabeth (Meserve) Barrett was born in Dresden, Maine, July 21, 1797. She is still living at San Francisco, at the advanced age of nearly ninety years.
- (689) Henry Carleton Barrett was by occupation a merchant. Soon after his marriage he removed from Dresden, Maine, to New Brunswick in the British Provinces, where he remained several years, and was quite successful in business. He subsequently removed to New York City, and engaged in business there. He continued to reside in New York City until 1860, when he removed with his family to San Francisco, California, where he continued to reside until his decease in 1869. He was a successful merchant, an upright and honorable man, honored and respected by his business associates and friends, and loved and honored by his wife and children for his many virtues, his affectionate and happy disposition, and for his exemplary life and character. Not long after his marriage he dropped his surname, Barrett, and adopted his mother's maiden name, Carleton (his own middle name) in its stead; and was ever afterwards known by the name of ⁶⁸⁹Henry Carleton, and his children bear that name (Carleton). There was no special reason, so far as known by his relatives and friends, for this change in his surname (the dropping of the Barrett) except, possibly, a desire on his part to thus honor his mother's maiden name, which he seemed to prefer. All his children and grandchildren bear the name of Carleton instead of Barrett, and are so borne upon this record.

(689) Henry and ⁶⁹⁷Elizabeth (Meserve) Carleton (Barrett) had seven children born to them, five sons and two daughters; the eldest was born in Dresden, Maine; the other six children were born in New York City.

Harris, formerly of New York City, and afterwards the first mayor of the City of San Francisco, California.

DR. JOHN AND ELIZABETH HODGE (BARRETT) HUBBARD, JR. (715-690).

(690) Sarah Hodge Barrett, the eldest daughter of ²⁷⁹Oliver₅, and ⁶⁹⁷Elizabeth (Carleton) Barrett, was born in New Milford (Alua), Lincoln County, Maine, March 4, 1796. She was married at Dresden, Lincoln County, Maine, July 12, 1825, to ⁷¹⁶Dr. John Hubbard, Jr., then a resident of Dinwiddie County, Virginia.

715 Dr. John Hubbard, Jr., son of ⁷¹⁶Dr. John and ⁷¹⁷Olive (Wilson) Hubbard, was born in Readfield, Kennebec County, Maine, March 22, 1794.

His father ⁷¹⁶Dr. John Hubbard, Sr., was born in Kingston, Rockingham County, New Hampshire, in 1759, and his mother, ⁷¹⁷Olive (Wilson) Hubbard, was born in Brentwood, Rockingham County, New Hampshire, in 1761. After his marriage ⁷¹⁶Dr. John Hubbard, Sr., located at New Hampton, Belknap County, New Hampshire, where he continued to reside and to practice his profession until 1784, when he removed to Readfield, Maine.

(715) Dr. John Hubbard, Jr., was a student at Monmouth Academy, Monmouth, Maine, for a short time, but made his chief preparation for college without the assistance of an instructor, by his private study, pursued with such earnestness that he was enabled to enter Dartmouth College in 1814 as a member of the Junior Class, with which he graduated in course in 1816.

He studied medicine with his father, and subsequently attended medical lectures at the Philadelphia Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania, and was graduated therefrom and received his medical diploma in 1822. Immediately after his graduation from the medical school he returned to Dinwiddie County, Virginia, where he had previously been teaching, and commenced the practice of his profession. He remained there in the practice of medicine until 1829, some four years after his marriage, when, on account of the health of Mrs. Hubbard, which had become seriously impaired, he returned to Maine and permanently established himself in the practice of his profession at Hallowell, Kennebec County, Maine. He continued to reside there and practice medicine and surgery until his death in 1869.

- (715) Dr. John Hubbard, Jr., was for many years a very prominent man in Maine, not only in his chosen profession, in which he was eminently successful and attained a high rank, both as a physician and a surgeon, and for nearly fifty years (forty-seven years) of his active professional life, had at all times a large and lucrative practice, but also as a politician, using this word in its better but least common acceptation, as relating to a man who has been honored by high offices of public trust and confidence. He was elected Governor of his native State for two consecutive terms and served during the years 1850, 1851 and 1852.

He discharged the high and important duties of Chief Executive of the State with marked ability and fidelity, and reflected honor not only upon the State, but also upon the political party (Democratic) which had selected him for its standard bearer, and had thrice honored him with its suffrages and support.

- (690) Mrs. Sarah Hodge (Barrett) Hubbard, his widow, is still living at the very great age of more than ninety-one years, (she was ninety-one on the 4th day of March, 1887), in the full enjoyment of her mental faculties, and with her physical powers in a much better condition than could be expected of a person of her advanced years. She writes me that Dr. Hubbard was a very successful and popular man, that he was highly respected and esteemed, not only by his professional brethren with whom he was always on terms of courteous and cordial intercourse, but also with his patients and the great public with whom he was so often brought into personal, professional and official intercourse and contact; and that he was also a kind and affectionate husband and an indulgent father. The loss of his companionship, his wise counsel, his strong, affectionate and tender sympathy, are now—since the NOTE "A."—Dinwiddie County, rather than a particular town or city in that County, is mentioned as Dr. Hubbard's Virginia residence, for the reason that his earlier work there as a teacher and his later work as a physician, was among the planters and farmers and their families in the country, and not in any town or city.

- (715) NOTE "B."—Dr. Hubbard was elected Governor in 1849, for a term of one year, beginning in May, 1850, and ending in May, 1851. He was again elected in 1851, and his term which would have expired in May 1852, was extended to January, 1853, in order to bring the Legislative sessions in January, instead of in May. He was again a candidate in 1852, nominated by his party for Governor, and received a large plurality vote for a third term, but the election went to the Legislature for want of a majority in the popular vote, and by a combination of the Whigs with the "Rum" and "Pro Slavery" Democrats in the joint convention of the two branches of the Legislature, he was defeated, and to his everlasting credit and honor be it said, that he preferred, nay, welcomed defeat—fighting for principles which to him were paramount—to a victory which could have only been won by a base and cowardly surrender of his life-long principles and convictions.

increasing infirmities of age become more and more apparent and ever present—more than ever most keenly and deeply felt.

(690) Mrs. Sarah Hodge (Barrett) Hubbard is a lady of fine education and broad culture. She is warm and affectionate in her friendships, tender and delicate in her sympathies, affable and courteous in her manners, and gentle and amiable in her disposition. Her long and useful life, now rapidly drawing to the end, has indeed been a happy one, and although she has been tried by the afflictions and sorrows, which the loss of near and dear friends inevitably brings to all of us, yet sustained and comforted by her strong faith in a future and higher life, and in the promises of her Redeemer, she has calmly and cheerfully borne herself with Christian fortitude and resignation, meekly exclaiming, "Thy will, not mine, be done." Her every want is anticipated and her every wish gratified by the willing hands and loving hearts of her affectionate and devoted children.

(715) Dr. John Hubbard died at Hallowell, Maine, February 6, 1869, full of years and of honors, aged seventy-four years, ten months and fourteen days.

(715) Dr. John and ⁶⁹⁰Sarah Hodge (Barrett) Hubbard had six children, three sons and three daughters, viz:

718 Hester Ann Hubbard₇, born in Dinwiddie County, Virginia, February 13, 1827. She died at Hallowell, Maine, July 21, 1836, aged nine years, five months and eight days.

720 Virginia Hamlin Hubbard₇, born in Hallowell, Maine, August 5, 1831.

721 Emma Gardiner Hubbard₇, born in Hallowell, Maine, April 26, 1834. She died in New York City.

722 John Barrett Hubbard, born in Hallowell, Maine, February 4, 1837.

723 Thomas Hamlin Hubbard, born in Hallowell, Maine, December 20, 1838.

THOMAS W. THOMPSON AND VIRGINIA HAMLIN
(HUBBARD) CURTIS. (724-720).

(720) Virginia Hamlin Hubbard, only surviving daughter of ⁷¹⁵Dr. John and ⁶⁹⁰Sarah Hodge (Barrett) Hubbard, was married at Hallowell, Maine, August 24, 1864, to ⁷²⁴Thomas W. Thompson Curtis of Hartford, Connecticut.

(720) Virginia Hamlin Hubbard received a thorough education at the Academy in Hallowell, Maine. She is a lady of refined and elevated tastes, broad and liberal culture and of many accomplishments. She has inherited the intellectual vigor and the independence of character, in thought and action, of her distinguished father, and the sweetness of temperament and the amiable, gentle and lovable qualities of her venerable mother. Comely and attractive in form and feature, kind and generous in her impulses, possessed of rare conversational powers, with a mind enriched by study and observation, devoted to her family and friends, Mrs. Curtis is loved and respected by all who have the pleasure of her friendship and acquaintance.

(724) Thomas W. Thompson Curtis, son of ^{724a}Rev. Jonathan and ^{724b}Martha (Barker) Curtis, was born in Epsom, New Hampshire, April 18, 1823. He was prepared for college at Pittsfield Academy, Pittsfield, New Hampshire; entered Dartmouth College in 1840, and was graduated therefrom, in course, with the highest honors of his class (first scholar), in 1844. His life-work has been that of a teacher, and he has earnestly devoted more than forty years of his life to that work. He has, in addition to his professional work in academies, been principal of the high schools at Lawrence, Massachusetts, Hartford, Connecticut, and since 1868, nearly twenty years, of the Hillhouse high school at New Haven, Connecticut. The present year (1887) he resigned his position as principal of the Hillhouse High School, but still retains his connection with it, in charge of his specialties in school work.

For some years prior to 1868, he successfully conducted, at Hartford, Connecticut, a private school for young ladies.

Mr. Curtis is a gentleman of fine intellectual and literary attainments, of broad and accurate scholarship, and has been, and is now, a very successful and popular teacher, and has won for himself a reputation as an educator second to that of no one in New England.

His father, Rev. Jonathan Curtis, was born in Stoughton, Massachusetts, in 1786. He was a lineal descendant of John and Priscilla (Mullins) Alden, of Puritan (Miles Standish) memory. He was graduated from Dartmouth College in the class of 1811, studied theology and became a clergyman. He married Betsy Barker, of Concord, New Hampshire. He died in 1861.

(724) Thomas W. Thompson and ⁷²⁰Virginia Hamlin (Hubbard) Curtis have had two children, sons, viz:

725 John Hubbard Curtis, born in Hartford, Connecticut, June 9, 1865.

726 Thomas Hamlin Curtis, born in Hallowell, Maine, May 9, 1866.

These two sons were prepared for college at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, Connecticut, under the immediate instruction of their father, entered Yale College in 1883, and graduated the present year (1887) with very high honors; Thomas Hamlin Curtis with the highest honors of his class, being the first scholar, and the valedictorian. John Hubbard Curtis ranked fourth in his class of one hundred and fifty members and took special honors in Philosophy and in English language and literature.

John Hubbard Curtis is now pursuing a post graduate course at Yale College and Thomas Hamlin Curtis has chosen civil engineering as his profession.

- (722) Capt. John Barrett Hubbard, son of ⁷¹⁵Dr. John and ⁶⁹⁰Sarah (Hodge) Barrett Hubbard, was prepared for college at Hallowell Academy, Hallowell, Maine, and entered Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, in 1853, and was graduated therefrom with high rank, in the class of 1857. After his graduation he became for one year the principal of the Hallowell Academy, reading law in the meantime. After having taught one year in the Academy at Hallowell, he went to Portland, Maine, to pursue his legal studies in the office of ⁷²⁷Hon. Edward Fox of that city. Before his professional studies were completed he temporarily resumed teaching, and became principal of the High School at Salmon Falls, New Hampshire, and subsequently of the High School at Lynn, Mass., where he was engaged in teaching when the War of the Rebellion broke out in 1861.

In October, 1861, he accepted the offer of a commission as First Lieutenant of the First Maine Battery of Mounted Artillery. He spent several months in recruiting for his Battery; he was mustered into the United States Volunteer Service, December 18, 1861, and went to the Department of the Gulf, in February, 1862, with the expedition commanded by ⁷²⁸Gen. Benj. F. Butler.

He continued in active service until the time of his death, serving in the field with conspicuous gallantry and great credit, in the Lafouche campaign, the first Peche campaign and in the campaign against Port Hudson. He was killed in battle in the first assault on Port Hudson, Louisiana, May 27, 1863. At the time of his death he was Captain and Assistant Adjutant General upon the staff of ⁷²⁹Gen. Godfrey Weitzel, to which rank he was commissioned by the War Department, October 27, 1862. He was unmarried.

GEN. THOMAS HAMLIN AND SIBYL A. (FAHNESTOCK)
HUBBARD. (723-730).

- (723) Thomas Hamlin Hubbard, the youngest child and only surviving son of ⁷¹⁵Dr. John and ⁶⁹⁰Sarah Hodge (Barrett) Hubbard, was prepared for college at Hallowell Academy with his elder brother, ⁷²²Capt. John Barrett Hubbard; entered Bowdoin College in 1853, and was graduated with high rank for deportment and scholarship in the same class with his brother in 1857. After his graduation he studied law at Hallowell for one year, and then succeeded his brother as principal of the Hallowell Academy, in which position he remained one year. In 1860 he entered the Law School at Albany, New York, and remained there one year. In 1861 he was admitted to the practice of his profession in the City of New York, where he remained until the summer of 1862, when he returned to his native State, entered the Union Army as Adjutant of the 25th Regiment, Maine Volunteer Infantry, and served with it in Virginia. At the expiration of this regiment's term of service in the following year. Gen. Hubbard engaged in recruiting and organizing the 30th Regiment, Maine Volunteer Infantry. He was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel of that regiment, and mustered into service December 19, 1863. He went with his regiment to the Department of the Gulf; served in the field during the Red River Campaign, participating in all its battles, and led his regiment at the battle of Marks-ville. He assisted in the construction of the dam across the Red River at Alexandria, by means of which the fleet of Federal gun boats was saved, and he was mentioned with special commendation for this service in the report of ⁷³¹Admiral Porter. He assisted in bridging the Atchafalaya River for the safe passage of the army, May 18, 1864. (The bridge over this river had been destroyed; the river was high and wide; ⁷³²Gen. Banks was in a hurry to get away from the Confederate Army which was pressing him, and a bridge was hurriedly made by placing transports side by side, and laying plank walks over them). He was commissioned Colonel of his regiment May 13, 1864, and was mustered in as Colonel, June 2, 1864. In the fall and winter of 1864, he served under ⁴⁷⁰Gen. Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley Campaign. He took part in the grand review of the army at Washington, and subsequently served in Savannah, Georgia. He was a brave, efficient and able officer, and distinguished himself in every position in which he was placed. Col. Hubbard was brevetted Brigadier General of Volunteers with rank from July 13, 1865.

Gen. Hubbard was mustered out of the service at the close of the war, and went back to the practice of his profession in New York City, where he now resides. He is a member of the law firm of ⁷³⁴But-ler, ⁷³⁵Stillman & ⁷²³Hubbard, who are the successors of the old firm of ⁷³⁶Barney, ⁷³⁴Butler & ⁷³⁷Parsons, with which he first became connected in 1861. The firm of Butler, Stillman & Hubbard have a large and lucrative practice, and Gen. Hubbard is regarded by the profession as an able and accomplished lawyer, and as one of the most upright and honorable members of the New York bar. He is at the present time, and for the past ten years has been, a member of the Board of Overseers of Bowdoin College.

REV. BENJAMIN FISKE AND ELIZABETH (ALLEN) BARRETT. (695-778).

(695) Benjamin Fiske Barrett^c, the youngest son of ²⁷⁹Oliver and ⁶⁸⁰Elizabeth (Carleton) Barrett, was born in Dresden, Maine, June 24, 1808.

He worked on his father's farm until he was eighteen years of age, making good use of such advantages of education as boys at that time enjoyed in the district school: and so well did he improve his limited opportunities that with two years of preparatory study (and nearly half of this time he was engaged in teaching and at work on the farm) he was able, at the age of twenty years, to enter Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, in 1828.

He—like most farmers' boys of that day who have since risen to the highest rank, attained high scholarship and reached the topmost round of fame in public and private life—was obliged "to work his way through college" by teaching school during the winter vacations, and doing such work in term time as he could get in and about the college. He was graduated from Bowdoin in the class of 1832. He attained high rank in college as a scholar, and at the time of his graduation was elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society. After his graduation he was for two years (1832-1834) principal of the Young Ladies' High School at Eastport, Maine.

In 1834 he entered the Divinity School of Harvard University, from which he was graduated in the class of 1838. While connected with the Divinity School at Cambridge, Mass., he served one year as a private tutor in the family of ⁷⁷⁶N. G. Carnes, Esq., Poughkeepsie, New York, in order to replenish his exhausted means. After his graduation from the Divinity School in 1838, he preached as a Unitarian minister in different places for one year, declining three invitations to be settled over Unitarian parishes. He had, meanwhile, been studying the works of ⁷⁷⁷Emanuel Swedenborg, which wrought a radical change in his theological convictions; and early in 1839 he dissolved his connection with the Unitarian denomination and joined that known as the "New Church." The next year (1840) he was ordained as a "New Church" minister and became the pastor of the "New Church" Society in the City of New York. He continued his pastoral relations with this Society until 1848, when he received a unanimous call from the "New Church" in Cincinnati, Ohio, which he accepted on the condition that the three small societies then existing in that city would unite and form one society. This condition was agreed to by the three societies interested, and in May, 1848, the ⁶⁹⁵Rev. Mr. Barrett, by mutual agreement, severed his connection with the "New Church" Society in New York City, and removed to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he preached for two years. In 1850 his health had become so impaired by overwork, coupled with a debilitating climate, that it became necessary for him to give up preaching, at least for a time, until his health should be restored. He therefore resigned his pastorate, removed to Chicago, Ill., and engaged in active out-of-door mechanical employment, by which means his health, in the course of a few months, became thoroughly restored, and he is now (1887) at the advanced age of seventy-nine years, a comparatively strong and healthy man, capable of and actually doing a large amount of exhausting mental labor as an author and editor, and as President, Corresponding Secretary and General Manager of the Swedenborg Publishing Association—positions which he has held for the last thirteen years, and which involve an extensive correspondence and a large amount of work.

- (695) Rev. Mr. Barrett believed, and acted upon that belief, that manual labor was not only an honorable one, but also an efficacious health restorer, more honorable and creditable, indeed, to a right thinking and independent man, than a foreign tour so frequently given in these days by even poor churches to poor (in more senses than one) ministers. And so the sequel proved.

In 1854 he removed from Chicago to Brooklyn, New York, and shortly after to Orange, New Jersey, where he continued his studies and devoted much time to authorship, confining his writings largely to the cause of the "New Church," the religious teachings and doctrines of which he had so enthusiastically and conscientiously espoused.

In 1864 he accepted a call from the first "New Church" society in Philadelphia, with which he remained as pastor for seven years. During that time he did a large amount of other work, such as editing the "New Church" Monthly, writing and publishing "New Church" books and tracts, re-translating and superintending the re-translation and publication of Swedenborg's works, and organizing and managing "The American New Church Tract and Publication Society," etc.

- (695) Rev. Mr. Barrett is admitted to be one of the ablest and most voluminous of the authors and writers of the "New Church" in America, if not in the world. He has published no less than sixteen volumes in support of Swedenborg's claim, and in lucidation and defense of the doctrines taught by him, besides numerous tracts, pamphlets, and magazine articles.

The most important of these works, and the volumes which probably have had the widest reading and most extensive sale, are "The New Dispensation," "Letters to Beecher on the Divine Trinity," "Letters to Beecher on the Future Life," "Swedenborg and Channing," "The Golden City," "The New View of Hell," "Heaven Revealed," "The Question Answered," "Footprints on the New Age," and "The True Catholicism;" the last, recently published, will prove, it is believed, one of the best and most popular of his works. He has also condensed Swedenborg's voluminous works on theology into twelve small volumes (about one-tenth in compass of the original works) giving the substance of this author's teachings in a compact form and in the great Seer's own language. This work was one of great labor, and is said by competent judges to have been executed with great care and skill, and with fidelity to the teachings of the author, and to have done much towards extending a knowledge of Swedenborg's teachings, and awakening an interest in them.

(695) Rev. Mr. Barrett is known and acknowledged, both outside of and within his own denomination, at home and abroad, as a man of broad and generous sympathies, enlarged views and scholarly attainments, and is generally recognized as the leader of the more advanced, progressive and liberal wing of the Swedenborgian or "New Church" body in America.

Rev. Benjamin Fiske Barrett was married to ⁷⁷⁸Miss Elizabeth Allen, youngest daughter of ⁷⁷⁹Cushing and ⁷⁸⁰Elizabeth (Trevette) Allen, of Bath, Maine, October 14, 1840.

- (778) Elizabeth (Allen) Barrett was born in Bath, Maine, May 27, 1815.

Mrs. Barrett is a woman of great refinement and delicacy of feeling as well as of great elevation, benevolence and sweetness of character; and by her amiable disposition, her gentle manners, her unswerving loyalty to duty, her unwavering trust in Divine Providence, and many other Christian graces, she has won in a rare degree the affection and admiration, not only of her family and friends, but of all who know her and are able to appreciate the beauty and worth of true womanhood.

- (695) Rev. Benjamin Fiske and ⁷⁷⁸Elizabeth (Allen) Barrett have had seven children, three sons and four daughters, (four of whom are now living), viz:

NOTE "A."—784William Cushing Barrett, the third son of 695Rev. Benjamin Fiske and 758Elizabeth (Allen) Barrett, who died in 1871 at the age of twenty years, is deserving of something more than casual notice in this record. A few extracts taken by permission from a notice of this young man after his death, by one of his teachers, (802Prof. W. C. Russell of Cornell University,) published in the Cornell Era, under date of May 17, 1872, will give a clearer and better view of the noble and manly character of one whose earnest and loyal though short life had given great promise of future usefulness.

(784) "William Cushing Barrett left behind him in a journal, in note books, letters, and in the memory of his friends, some traces of his life which seem too valuable to remain private; and as they have impressed me deeply, I have thought they might interest his fellow students. Selecting, therefore, a small part of what has been placed in my hands, I offer it to the readers of The Era in the hope that thereby the spirit of a lovely and true soldier of duty may enter into the characters of some who have not known him before, and his power be thus prolonged on that earth which he dearly loved.

"The few events of his life may be briefly stated. He was the son of the 695Rev. B. F. Barrett, an able and honored minister of the Swedenborgian faith, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1850, and his life was divided between Chicago, Orange, N. J., Philadelphia and Ithaca. His school education began at Orange, where, at the age of eleven, he took up Latin. Next he added Greek to his studies, and his preparation for college was completed at Philadelphia in the school of Messrs. 803Chase & 804Buckingham. In 1867 he entered Harvard University. As a boy he was remarkable not so much for love of study nor for hard work, but for loyalty to duty and anxiety to do well what he undertook. His native conscientiousness and pride in correctness were shown from the outset in his first relations to others, and made his path bright in the minds of all the teachers of his early days. He loved play very much, and learned his lessons easily, but he never neglected duty; he was full of fun, but did his work thoroughly; and though he had unusual animal spirits, he had greater pride and fidelity. No unusual pains were taken to educate his religious nature, but his moral sense was cultivated in an atmosphere of kindness, truth and purity. Books illustrating the best human traits, and a happy home, were his teachers, and his childhood passed without any extraordinary development of character, but with a steady growth of love for what is generous, self-denying, true, pure, and faithful.

"His sense of humor, very strong at all times, occasionally made him somewhat of an enfant terrible.

"This humor continued to the last, lighting up many a dark place helping to carry many a heavy weight.

"His temper, though readily obedient to kindness, was naturally quick and sometimes swayed him violently.

"After he entered Harvard he decided for several reasons to delay a year before beginning his course. During that year, however, Cornell University attracted his attention, and its promised liberality and freedom from sectarianism and opportunities of out-door labor, determined him to seek his education here rather than where he had before intended. He came accordingly at our opening and joined the course of arts.

"Of his life here, a part was visible to all and easily appreciated; but the best part can only be guessed at from his letters and his journal which he kept during his stay. His fair face, lighted by dark brown eyes and a very sweet smile, attracted attention; his manliness, activity and pluck compelled respect; and his excellent recitations gave confident promises for the future; but the inner being no other man knew. He lived his college life of foot ball, boxing and rambling in the woods, of class friendships and class meetings, of earnest study and excellent performance; but within was growing a character of fidelity and high aspiration which he made known only to the one Power to whom he opened his soul.

"He was fond of nature and liked to spend hours alone, drawing from her suggestions and interpretations of his questionings. Some of his verses, too long for insertion here, show that his converse with the flowers was one of the heart. His sympathy embraced, too, the birds and the butterflies, and even smaller beings. This beautiful scenery was a perpetual delight to him, and earth was very rich in his eyes. Where could he even hope to find a more lovely dwelling place? What interests could ever be to him so precious as those to which he had devoted himself here? Those interests were in humanity, and to serve it faithfully he turned from natural beauty to cultivate a character of love and sympathy for man. His social nature was a special object of his care.

"He neglected no part of his nature, but kept himself, like a valuable instrument, with care, and took every measure to secure efficient action. By exercise in the open air, walks in the country, boxing, gymnastics, and by temperance in his diet, his bodily health was preserved and his brain always ready. His temper was schooled to cheerfulness and hope. Sensitive as he was to unkindness, his irritability was controlled by respect for others, and a slight flush on his cheek and a more quiet manner said all he chose to express. The following letter to his father gives us an idea of the beautiful relation existing between them, and is equally honorable to both:

"What you said about our little talk in the library has made a deep impression on my mind, causing me to respect and love you more than I ever did before. I despise the title upon which many parents claim respect, the same as that adopted by the Jewish Patriarchs and Old Romans, namely, that of mere parentage. It is just as impossible for a young person to respect and love a parent merely on the ground of having given him birth, as it is for the young lion or bear. While it is young and weak, it clings to him for protection; but when it becomes capable of taking care of itself, it demands higher attributes to inspire respect; it acknowledges itself a man or woman, and claims to be so acknowledged. It becomes one of the great brotherhood of mankind and asks to be treated as such.

"You do not ask me to respect you, nor to love or admire you. You do not make any demand upon me; but yet, without any effort, seemingly, you force me both to respect you, to love you and admire you. It is not as a father I respect you; but as a man. It seems to me that the love which exists between persons who acknowledge the perfect equality of each other as human beings, must be stronger than that between those where one demands and the other concedes a natural superiority from age or parentage. So when you say that you feel toward me as if I were a younger brother, you place me where I believe I can love you better, and where you may love me better."

"In February, 1871, his health began to fail. He had never been rugged, but he had always taken good care of himself, been temperate in all things, faithful in active exercise, cheerful in reliance on Divine aid, and had enjoyed good health. The disease was in the kidneys and occasioned him great bodily pain but without affecting his mind. The interruption of his attendance upon recitations and lectures was a great trial, though he maintained his sweetness and cheerfulness.

"The disease gained on him and he was obliged gradually to give up study. He suffered a great deal of pain and was finally compelled to shut himself up in the house. All, however, was borne sweetly and cheerfully. The body grew weaker, but his character shone out the more strongly. His only uneasiness seemed to

- (788) Marie Louise (Barnes) Barrett was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., September 28, 1843. She died at Richmond, Va., October 2nd, 1881, aged thirty-eight years and four days.
- (781) Dr. Albert Reed and ⁷⁸⁸Marie Louise (Barnes) Barrett had three children, two sons and one daughter, viz:
- 789 Charles Lorentz Barrett_s, born in Edgefield, Tenn., September 25, 1867.
- 790 William Ernest Barrett_s, born in Edgefield, Tenn., February 16, 1870.
- 791 May Lewis Barrett_s, born in Bayonne, N. J., April 25, 1874.
- 781 Dr. Albert Reed Barrett, eldest son of ⁶⁹⁵Rev. Benjamin Fiske and ⁷⁷⁸Elizabeth (Allen) Barrett, received his principal education at a military academy, under ⁷⁹²Col. Wisewell, at Yonkers, N. Y., and at ⁷⁹³Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie N. Y. At the outbreak of the Civil War he joined the 7th Regiment New York State Militia, in April, 1861, as a private in Company I. This was the first regiment that left New York for the defence of Washington. Shortly after the return of this regiment to New York, he joined ⁷⁹⁴Berdan's 1st Regiment U. S. Sharpshooters as Second Sergeant of Co. "H," come from his troubling the family so much. On every other subject he threw from his bed or arm chair a light of gaiety and humor and affection which make the memory of his last days the most precious of any. Finally a typhoid fever set in and he sank rapidly. Still over him disease gained no victory. His patience, his self-forgetfulness, his thoughtfulness of others, his entire serenity were never so conspicuous as when he lay weak and emaciated, breathing away his few remaining hours. Nothing was said about the future. All that medical power could do was done; nothing which love and the fullest appreciation of the life that was vanishing away could dictate was omitted. The last day of spring, however, closed his life. The full fruit of so many years of care and preparation and culture, the result of much faithful study, long thought, constant prayer, resolution, patient self-denial, heroic cheerfulness, subjection of the passions and consecration to God and to man lay there, dear beyond price to that family, valuable beyond estimation as a power in the world, not a sense obscured, nor an affection cooled, but in a body over which disease now triumphed. His beautiful eyes turned to his sister and asked her to kiss him. She did so. 'That was very sweet,' he whispered; 'I think I could take another;' and as she gave it he fell into a sleep from which his body never woke."

was shortly promoted to First Sergeant, and in 1862 was promoted to Second Lieutenant. He served in the Peninsular Campaign, and was in thirteen engagements including the Seven Days Battles before Richmond. He was honorably discharged late in the fall of 1862 with health much impaired. In 1864 he went to Nashville, Tennessee, and entered the Quartermaster's Department. During the campaign of ⁷⁹⁵Gen. Thomas in Tennessee in the winter of 1864 and 1865 he served as Lieutenant and Volunteer Aide de Camp under ⁷⁹⁶Col. Peterson. He was connected with the First National Bank at Nashville, Tennessee, for a number of years after the war. He commenced the study of medicine in 1871, pursued it under many difficulties with a family to support, until 1877, when he graduated at the University of Nashville, Tennessee. In 1878 he removed to Richmond, Virginia, where he entered into the practice of medicine. Shortly after the death of his wife he removed with his three children to the North, and finally settled in Germantown, Pennsylvania, where he at present resides and practices his profession.

- (783) Gertrude Allen Barrett, the eldest daughter of ⁶⁹⁵Rev. Benjamin Fiske and ⁷⁵⁸Elizabeth (Allen) Barrett, received the greater part of her school education at two excellent schools for the education of girls, one in Hartford, Connecticut, under the charge of her uncle, ⁷²⁴Thomas W. Thompson Curtis; the other in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, under the charge of Miss Mary Ann Longstreth, who, for nearly a half century, conducted the latter school.

She has unselfishly devoted some thirteen years of her life to the training of skilled nurses for the sick.

Having had her attention especially directed in the case of two near and very dear friends, to the importance of skilled nursing by thoroughly competent and educated nurses, and having had her attention called also to the great difficulty of securing the services of such nurses, she resolved to dedicate her life to the education and training of nurses, and in order to prepare herself for this work, she entered, in October 1873, the Brooklyn Maternity, a small hospital for women and children, and the first in this country to establish as one of its departments a training school for nurses. In this school she completed the regular course of six months, and then engaged in private nursing for a few months. Her experience as a private nurse soon convinced her that her education and training as yet were deficient and incomplete, and in October, 1874, she entered the training school of the Bellevue Hospital, New York City, where she remained until April 1875, when, on account of failing health she was obliged to sever her connection with that school. In June, 1875, after a rest of two months she went back to the Brooklyn Maternity Hospital as Superintendent of the nursery and children's department, where she remained until May, 1876. At this time (May, 1876) she yielded to the call of a dear friend who needed her services as nurse, and resigned her position in the Maternity Hospital. In 1877 she was placed in charge of the children's ward of the Boston City Hospital (said to be the finest and best equipped hospital in this country) where she remained one year, when she was appointed Superintendent of the Training School of the State Hospital at New Haven, Connecticut, where she remained four years. She left the latter hospital to accept the position of Superintendent of the Training School of the Brooklyn Homeopathic Hospital at Brooklyn, New York, where she remained two years, when, her health again failing, she was obliged to resign her position, and is now (1887) resting from labors which have greatly overtaxed her physical powers.

Miss Barrett is recognized as one of the most accomplished specialists in the country, in her department, and to her intelligent and unremitted efforts to raise the standard of qualification of professional nurses, the country is greatly indebted. With health and strength restored, there may yet be left for her many years of labor and usefulness. She is unmarried, and is at the present time, 1887, at Germantown, with her parents.

- (281) Major Benjamin Fiske Barrett₅, the fourth and youngest son of ¹¹⁰Oliver₄ and ²⁰⁸Anna (Fiske) Barrett, was born in Billerica, Middlesex County, Mass., January 16, 1770. He was married at Westminster, Worcester County, Mass., January 1, 1795, to ⁹⁴⁹Betsy Gerrish, of Westminster.
- (949) Betsy Gerrish was born in Westminster, Mass., November 10, 1774. She died at Springfield, New York, December 17, 1836, aged sixty-two years, one month and seven days.

He died at Springfield, New York, October 31, 1844, aged seventy-four years, nine months and fifteen days.

- (281) Major Benjamin Fiske Barrett was bound out by his guardian as an apprentice and learned the trade of a tanner and currier. Having served his time as an apprentice, he worked at it as a journeyman until about the time of his marriage in 1795. Immediately after his marriage he located and established himself in business in Royalston, Worcester County, Mass., where he continued to reside and carry on the business of a tanner and currier until April 22, 1803. He sold out his business at Royalston, and removed to Wilton, Hillsborough County, New Hampshire, where he had, in August, 1802, purchased a small farm of twenty acres with a tannery establishment connected therewith, "including house, barn, bark-house, potash building, tan vats, currier's shop, sheds and other buildings."

He resided and carried on business at Wilton until March, 1811, when he was unfortunately overtaken by business reverses, for which he was not responsible, but which induced him to close out his business, sell his farm and remove from Wilton to Springfield, New York, where he continued to reside until his death, in 1844. In Springfield he purchased a farm and established himself in business which he, at first alone, and subsequently with his sons, Benjamin and George, successfully and profitably prosecuted until his decease.

- (281) Major Barrett was an upright, broad guaged, liberal minded man, a publicspirited citizen, a kind neighbor, and an affectionate and indulgent husband and father. He left behind him the example of one who had lived not for himself alone, but also for the community in which he resided, and was a prominent actor, and for his fellow men, and that the world might be the better for his having lived in it.

Early in life, so early, in fact, that none of his children knew anything about it, and perhaps the first knowledge that his living descendants will have of the fact will be when their eyes first see this page, ²⁸¹Major Barrett dropped his middle name, Fiske, and never again used it in writing his name. Nevertheless it is a fact that, on the 21st day of January, 1770, he was baptized under the name of ²⁸¹Benjamin Fiske Barrett, as the church records of the town of Billerica, Mass., still extant, show.

- (281) Major and ⁹⁴⁹Mrs. Barrett were both members of the Presbyterian Church, of which he was a Deacon.

He is represented by those who knew him best, as "a person of more than common intelligence, integrity and enterprise; and she as a lady of gentle, womanly nature, modest and retiring, but one of the best of mothers."

- 958 William Barrett₆, born in Springfield, New York, November 18, 1812.
- 959 Fiske Barrett 2d₆, born in Springfield, New York, March 1, 1816.
- 960 George Barrett₆, born in Springfield, New York, September 19, 1818.

Four of the eight sons of ²⁸¹Benjamin Fiske and ⁹⁴⁹Betsey (Gerrish) Barrett, received a thorough collegiate and professional education, viz: ⁹⁵⁰Samuel, ⁹⁵¹Gerrish, ⁹⁵²William and ⁹⁵⁹Fiske; three of them, viz: Samuel, Gerrish and Fiske became clergymen, and the fourth, William, became a lawyer.

- (950) Samuel Barrett₆, the eldest son of ²⁸¹Maj. Benjamin Fiske₅ and ⁹⁴⁹Betsey (Gerrish) Barrett, received his rudimentary education in the "District Schools" of Wilton, N. H.

"Wilton was," at the time (1803-1813) "a quiet, secluded, and almost isolated farming town." This was before the days of railroads, telegraphs, cotton and woolen mills and machine shops.

The introduction of these "great promoters of wealth and civilization," has wrought a wonderful change in the "quiet and secluded" town of that day.

"Surrounded by an amphitheatre of hills, the township lies, as it were, in a basin, the surface of which is dotted over with hills of a lesser grade, and these gracefully rounded at their top, slope away with a gentle, uniform declension, terminating in rich intervalles. These hills and valleys industriously cultivated, give many happy homes to a highly intelligent and moral population. It has long been favorably known for its system of public schools, for its love of learning and religion, and as the birth place of the ⁹⁶¹Peabodys, the ⁹⁶²Abbotts, the ⁹⁶³Burtons, the ⁹⁶⁴Livermores and others who have acquired no little distinction for their ministerial gifts and literary attainments."

"And here it was, surrounded by the wild and picturesque scenery and the population such as we have described, that he (Samuel Barrett) received his first impressions of knowledge, virtue and piety."

He loved his books, was a diligent student, and by unremitted diligence and close application during the few weeks in each year he could attend school, he early ranked as one of the best, if not the best scholar of his age in town. By an intelligent and well directed use of the "Town" and "Ministerial Libraries," both extremely rare in those days, and by constant and regular attendance upon the meetings of the "Literary and Moral Society," (the forerunner of the more modern but now nearly extinct "Lyceum") of which he was an original member, and in which he took an active interest, he acquired much valuable knowledge and discipline which were to be of great future use and benefit to him, and which thus early in life, enlarged his mind and developed his whole intellectual, moral and religious nature. At an unusually early age he began to dream of obtaining a liberal education, and to talk of becoming a minister of the gospel.

In 1810, his father, who hitherto had been prosperous, met with the business reverses before referred to, and could not thereafter give him any encouragement or promise of substantial aid. It was at this unfortunate turn in his father's affairs, that one who afterwards proved to be his best friend—more even than a second father, if indeed such a relationship could exist—generously came forward and volunteered to take him into his own family as a member thereof and prepare him for college.

965 Rev. Thomas Beede, the scholarly, liberal-minded and able minister for many years at Wilton, was young Barrett's beloved pastor and friend.

(965) Rev. Mr. Beede was aware of his youthful friend's ardent desire and resolute purpose to obtain a liberal education, and greatly encouraged him in his determination.

(950) Samuel Barrett remained in the family of ⁹⁶⁵Mr. Beede and under his immediate personal instruction preparing for college, from 1811 to 1813. During this time he had made such progress in his preparatory studies that he was fairly well prepared to enter any of the New England Colleges, Harvard and Yale only excepted. At this time, 1813, he determined before entering college to visit his parents at Springfield, New York. While there he took charge of a small school for a short time, and subsequently of another in the village of Canajoharrie, New York, on the Mohawk River, which he taught for a term of six months. In 1814 he returned to Wilton, and again placed himself under the tuition of his old friend ⁹⁶⁵Rev. Mr. Beede for a few weeks. In August, 1814, he visited Cambridge, attended Commencement exercises, and finally presented himself for, and successfully passed, the required examination for admission, and matriculated as a member of the Freshman Class of Harvard College, from which he was graduated with high honor in the class of 1818, and received his first degree, "A. B."

In 1817, he (Mr. Barrett) was elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society. After his graduation he found himself, as many others have found themselves, without the requisite means to pursue his post graduate studies at the Divinity School, and was obliged to teach school for a time before he could continue his studies. From 1813 to 1823, including in that period the time he taught before he entered college and the time he taught during his college vacation, and the time spent in teaching after his graduation, he had devoted to teaching enough months in the aggregate to make four full years.

"To him, as to other teachers, it was a source of extreme satisfaction in later years that he could refer to not a few distinguished persons whom it had been his privilege and pleasure to instruct. Among others we have heard him name such honored men as ⁹⁶⁶Judge E. R. Hoar, ⁹⁶⁷Rev. Dr. Stearns, ⁹⁶⁸Dr. E. Peabody, ⁹⁶⁹Warren Burton, ⁹⁷⁰Abiel A. Livermore, ⁹⁷¹J. H. Abbott, Esq., ⁹⁷²Dr. Hosmer, ⁹⁷³Judge Luther S. Cushing, ⁹⁷⁴Prof Holmes, ⁹⁷⁵Hon. R. H. Dana, Jr., and others."

Soon after his graduation he went to Concord, Mass., where he taught the grammar school of that town for one year. In the summer of 1819, he returned to Cambridge and entered the Divinity School. Here he pursued his theological studies for three years, teaching a portion of the time during the entire period.

He graduated from the Divinity School of Harvard University in the class of 1822. In 1821, he received from Harvard College the degree of "A. M."

Soon after his graduation from the Divinity School, he was "according to a custom of those days, approbated to preach by the ministers of the Boston Association. He officiated for the first time in the church of the ⁹⁷⁶Rev. Converse Francis, of Watertown, Mass. His professional labors were in immediate and constant demand; first at Barnstable, then at Medford, and afterwards at Eastport, in the State of Maine. In 1823, he was invited to go to Philadelphia and supply the pulpit of the first Congregational Church there, and also to preach to the Society of Baltimore, the pulpit of which had recently been vacated by ⁹⁷⁷Mr. Sparks (Rev. Dr. Jared Sparks, the learned divine and historian and afterwards President of Harvard University). By arrangement he continued for six months to officiate for these societies. By both he was invited to become their pastor; but in both cases the invitation was declined. In 1824, he returned to Cambridge and supplied various pulpits in that vicinity; among others, the New Society in Keene, New Hampshire, whose invitations to settle he declined.

“In 1824, the corner stone of a new church edifice, the first erected in the City of Boston by Unitarians, the society taking the corporate name of ‘The Twelfth Congregational Society of Boston,’ was laid. In October of that year the building was completed and solemnly dedicated to the worship of God.

“After having filled an engagement to supply the pulpit of this new church for three Sundays to the entire satisfaction of the committee and congregation, he was invited with entire unanimity to take charge of the new society and to receive ordination as its first minister.

“On the 9th of February, 1825, he was regularly ordained as the first minister of the Twelfth Congregational Society in the city of Boston, which relation continued without interruption to the mutual satisfaction of pastor and people until 1858, a third of a century, when he believed that duty to himself and his beloved people demanded his resignation, and its acceptance by the society of the sacred trust so long, so faithfully and so ably administered by him. In his letter of resignation ⁹⁵⁰Dr. Barrett said: 'Many things remind me that the time has arrived when, for myself, relief from the burdens of the clerical office will soon be needful, and when, without the aid of a younger hand and a fresher spirit than I now possess, the interests of our beloved parish cannot much longer be satisfactorily advanced.'

This resignation was necessarily yet most reluctantly accepted, accompanied with such expressions and tokens on the part of his people as must have been most gratifying to ⁹⁵⁰Dr. Barrett. The society voted him a gratuity of six thousand dollars, and bore "a cheerful and grateful testimony, that, with an evangelical earnestness and a vital faith, he had not failed to declare unto them the whole counsel of God, and to point out plainly and faithfully the only safe path to heaven, a true Christian life; and not satisfied with precept only he had endeavored, by the daily beauty of his own exemplary conduct and character, to aid them in the attainment of this great end: also, to his tender fidelity in the discharge of all his pastoral duties; and, finally, that by his constant and unabated zeal and deep interest, manifested at home as well as abroad, in the diffusion of uncorrupt Christianity, in the cause of general education and sound learning, and of every wise and philanthropic enterprise, he had not only awakened in the hearts of his own people a deep and practical sympathy in the physical and spiritual wants of suffering humanity, but also, by the reflex influence of a prudence, wisdom, and Christian charity which had never failed, had done much to foster the stability and character of our best institutions, whether public or private, political, literary or religious. Virtually, this was the termination of his regular ministry; but, in accordance with the terms of his resignation, he continued to supply the pulpit until a colleague was settled."

(950) Rev. Dr. Barrett was through life a diligent student, not only of books, with which he was thoroughly conversant, but also of men and the great questions of the day. He ranked high as a scholar. His researches were thorough, his judgments sound, discriminating and independent, and his conclusions were held and defended without narrowness or bigotry. He was an untiring worker. Besides attending to his church and parochial duties, including his church and other societies, he became largely engaged in other work. He was a frequent and able contributor to the religious press of the Unitarian denomination, and was for many years an active and useful member of the general school board of the City of Boston. He was for seventeen years a member of the Board of Overseers of Harvard College, and for fifteen years chairman of one of its most important committees. He was also an active and working member of nearly every charitable and philanthropic society in Boston, and frequently was the presiding officer of some of these societies. In 1824, he became the editor of a weekly religious paper called "The Christian," published in Philadelphia. In 1826, and again in 1840, 1841 and 1842, he was one of the editors of "The Christian Register," the leading organ of the Unitarian denomination. In 1825 and 1826, he was elected Chaplain of the Massachusetts State Senate. In 1830 and 1831, he was associate editor of the "Unitarian Advocate." He also prepared and delivered, at various times, on public occasions, numerous sermons and addresses, many of which were published.

In 1839, having obtained leave of absence from his society, he went to the West as a missionary of the Unitarian Association. He was absent three months, and during that time he made a journey of more than four thousand miles South and West, traveled in fifteen of the United States, visited forty cities and towns without number; preached wherever there was a Unitarian pulpit, selected new fields of missionary labor, and gathered valuable material for future use. 1847, he was honored by his Alma Mater, Harvard College, with the honorary degree of "D. D." It was an honor highly appreciated by him, but it was richly deserved, and Harvard College honored herself in thus conferring a deserved honor upon one of her most faithful and worthy sons. In 1850, he preached his "Quarter Century Sermons."

"In these, with a graphic pen, he recounted the origin of the society, its rapid growth and its uniform prosperity and success. At the close of the second of these discourses he set forth some of his own labors with a modesty and reserve characteristic of the man, and took occasion to say 'There never, perhaps, existed a more united people than you have been. No root of bitterness has at any time, to my knowledge, sprung up amongst you. Like brothers and sisters you have dwelt together in peace and love.' This is the generous testimony that he bears to the conduct of his people. For himself, he adds: 'I have been happy, possibly too happy. Twenty-five more pleasant years than those I have passed with you, have probably at no time fallen to the lot of another minister. Whatever awaits me in the future, the past is secure, and I shall always look back upon the long portion of my life spent here with feelings of joy, tempered only by the sense of my own imperfections, and with fervent gratitude to Almighty God.'"

And he closed with admonitions and encouragements of a most elevating, cheerful and hopeful nature.

Immediately after the delivery of these sermons his church and society spontaneously granted him leave of absence for four months in order that he might visit Europe, continuing his salary and supplying his pulpit at their own expense. He sailed from Boston in May and returned in November. This vacation from labor afforded him a much needed rest.

Nearly two years elapsed after the resignation of his pastorate above referred to before his successor was called.

During this time ⁹⁵⁰Dr. Barrett continued, at the urgent request of his people, to supply the pulpit. On June 17, 1860, ⁹⁷⁹Rev. J. F. Lovering, who had received the call, was ordained as ⁹⁵⁰Dr. Barrett's colleague. This nominal relation continued to exist until ⁹⁵⁰Dr. Barrett's death in 1866, although in fact he had ceased to be the preacher and pastor of his beloved people and had become a proprietor and parishioner with them.

(950) Dr. Barrett soon afterwards removed to Roxbury. He took up his residence upon the Highlands in the immediate neighborhood of some of his old ministerial friends and of his old and well tried parishioners. As his pulpit services were in constant demand, he continued to preach up to the time of his last sickness. He was a kind, genial, sympathetic man, a friend who was ever ready and willing to extend to the worthy needy any aid in his power. He always felt a deep interest in deserving young men and women who were desirous of obtaining an education. To three of his brothers, ⁹⁵¹Gerrish, ⁹⁵⁸William and ⁹⁵⁹Fiske, and to his only sister ⁹⁵⁶Almira (Barrett) Cleveland, he gave substantial pecuniary aid to enable them to obtain a liberal education.

The compiler of this monograph with infinite pleasure and gratitude recalls the time when he, on his way from Wilton to Cambridge in 1855, to pass an examination for admission to Harvard College, under circumstances very similar to those in which ⁹⁵⁰Dr. Barrett had found himself placed forty-one years before, (1814), called on him (Dr. Barrett) at his home in Boston for a word of encouragement and a letter of recommendation. How kindly and cheerfully the one was spoken and the other given! The happy, encouraging smile and merry twinkle of his eye, as he gave the letter addressed to his old friend, ⁹⁸⁰Dr. James Walker, then President of Harvard College, and said, "I think that will insure you success if anything can," will never be forgotten. The writer was encouraged and felt that he had a sure passport for admission to Harvard, and to the friendship of ⁹⁸⁰Dr. Walker. The result proved that he was not mistaken, for he to whom the letter was given, ever found in ⁹⁸⁰Dr. Walker, a kind friend and adviser.

The following extract taken from a memorial sermon preached by ⁹⁸¹Rev. Dr. C. A. Bartol from his own pulpit, in the West Church, Boston, a few Sabbaths after the decease of ⁹⁵⁰Dr. Barrett, is here inserted because of the truthful portraiture of his life-long friend, without any apology for the length of the quotation:

“He was one of the narrowing circle of the wise and good, the constant and experienced, the friendly and judicious of our elder brethren, on whom we feel we are depending with an affectionate confidence, amid changes which take away more than they supply of enthusiasm and courage of heart. So admirably poised in him was the balance between a love of the old, and hospitality towards the new elements of the working religious forces of the age, that there is hardly another of the elders among us who may more fairly represent the creed and spirit of our fellowship. As a preacher Dr. Barrett was regarded by his own people as having but few, if any, superiors in the effectiveness of his pulpit ministrations. Dr. Barrett was a good man. There was nothing about him cold, indifferent, or tame, rather an extraordinary fervor. But his heart had no foul or malign element. His fire showed the purity of a smokeless flame. It was fed with no selfish or sensual fire, but with sacred essences of humanity and truth. Let me bear him witness. Throughout these thirty years of our mutual acquaintance, I never met him but to see this divine ardor in his face, hear it in his voice, and mark it in his manner; and to breathe in his whole atmosphere that indescribable blending of beautiful traits, the secret of whose unity could no more be detected than the way the seven colors melt into the spotless white. So gentle his look, so cordial his greeting, it was sufficient to imagine that an almost volcanic passion was native to his soul. But never was victory more perfect than in the charity to which his temper was schooled and subdued.

“The combination too, in character, so rare and hard, of the kind with the sincere, in him was complete. His veracity seemed a law. He did not know how to tell a lie. I do not think he could have done it. Yet there was no attribute in him his friend would perhaps sooner single out than his wisdom, though it was wisdom without suspicion of management or cunning. He was as simple as he was wise. With shrewdness I should say, he united self forgetfulness, but there appeared no self to forget. Self denial was self indulgence. His entire self government set him against all violent procedure, even in reform. Yet though late in the field, he was loyal to the core; for when the enemies of freedom showed their hand and began to play with guns their terrible game, none resisted with more resolution.

"Bright and cheering views his own mind moved him to take. To him in his goodness, all was good. The world was a good world; the race was a good race; all fortune was good fortune; and Providence was infinitely good. In the darkest times he never despaired. I suppose there never was profounder faith in the future of mankind, and the immortal destiny and bliss of the children of men.

"Never was pity more tender or reflective or circumspect. I should leave out one of the principal traits, if I omitted this uniform, unsurpassed forbearance to rub unnecessarily the sore spot. Not that he was reticent or close. He was transparent and altogether decided in his opinion. But he differed entirely from those who are diligent to thrust in the probe where they have not been called as surgeons, and chafing into morbid activity old and half healed wounds. The young are good judges; and he singularly drew them as a teacher in early life.

"He was a good man. Perhaps no clergyman has been more beloved by his parishioners and professional associates. Many a heart was in the coffin holding the precious remains that had been his body, the shrine of a nature as noble and affectionate as is ever dressed in human form, still keeping in decay his innocent and generous look.”

The foregoing sketch of the life of ⁹⁵⁰Rev. Dr. Barrett has been mainly taken from a memoir of Dr. Barrett, by his lifelong friend and parishioner ⁹⁸²Dea. Lewis G. Pray, published in 1867.

- (950) Rev. Samuel Barrett, D. D., died at Roxbury, Mass., June 24, 1866, aged seventy-five years, ten months and thirteen days.

REV. DR. SAMUEL AND MARY SUSAN (GREENWOOD)
BARRETT. (950-983.)

- (950) Rev. Dr. Samuel Barrett was married at Boston, Mass., September 11, 1832, to ⁹⁸³Mary Susan Greenwood, daughter of ⁹⁸⁴Dr. William Pitt and ⁹⁸⁵Mary (Langdon) Greenwood, of Boston.
- (983) Mary Susan (Greenwood) Barrett was born in Boston, Mass., April 19, 1805.
- (984) Dr. William Pitt Greenwood was born in the town of Boston, Mass., May 10, 1766. He was the youngest of the five sons of ⁹⁸⁶Isaac and ⁹⁸⁷Mary (Jans) Greenwood, and a grandson of ⁹⁸⁸Prof. Isaac Greenwood, a graduate of Harvard College in the class of 1721, and a professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy in Harvard College from 1727 to 1738. He died in 1745.
- 989 Nathaniel Greenwood, the ancestor of ⁹⁸⁴Dr. William Pitt Greenwood, was a ship builder, born in Norwich, England. He emigrated to America and settled in Boston, Mass., in 1650.
- (984) Dr. William Pitt Greenwood was well and thoroughly educated by Master John Tileston, a famous teacher in his day in Boston. Dr. Greenwood completed his professional studies at, and received the degree of D. D. S. from, the Baltimore College.

He was through life a very bright, intelligent, cultivated gentleman, kindly, genial and courteous in his manners, pleasant, entertaining and instructive in conversation, and devotedly fond of his books.

His honesty and truthfulness were of the highest standard; the least shadow of untruthfulness or deception would bring down upon the transgressor his severe condemnation, be his position ever so high or his degree of kinship ever so near.

He had a remarkably retentive memory, and his reminiscences of men and events were always very interesting and instructive. Early in the present century he had restored the old family tomb on "Copp's Hill" from vandal and desecrating hands, and he ever afterwards took pleasure in relating how he, accompanied by the ⁹⁹⁰Hon. William Sullivan as an associate, had "descended with fire and sword" upon the party who had dared to sell the bones of his ancestors. His grand-daughter, ¹⁰⁰⁰Mrs. Frances Langdon (Barrett) Chandler, to whom the writer is indebted for the facts relating to the family of her grand-parents and their ancestors, states "That on his periodical visits to this place, he would point out the locality of his father's earlier residence on Salem street (Boston), and the spot a few rods distant where a battalion of British troops were quartered in 1775, and from which he (Dr. Greenwood) and his friend Casneau saw them march off on the morning of the 17th of June, 'in high feather,' to be brought back in the afternoon, wounded, dying and dead, their blood being bailed from the boats like water. He could also remember ³⁷³Maj. Pitcairn, of Lexington and Concord fame, as he was being carried through Charles street mortally wounded, to be afterward buried under the neighboring church."

The following anecdote, as told by Mrs. Chandler, illustrates Dr. Greenwood's energy and force of character and action: "It was proposed upon one occasion to give the officiating clergyman of a certain church in Boston a leave of absence for three months. The church committee, comprising the wealthiest men of the society, voted to close the church during the absence of the pastor. Dr. Greenwood, who was a constant attendant, and a great advocate of regular church going, opposed this action of the committee, upon the ground that those who wished to do so should not be deprived of the privilege of attending services at their own church, and declared that he would attend church even if he had to go alone. No heed was given to Dr. Greenwood's declaration of his purpose, which was regarded as a mere whim on his part. They were soon undeceived; for upon the following Sunday Dr. Greenwood, true to his declared purpose, went to the sexton and directed him to open the church at the usual hour: the sexton complied, and Dr. Greenwood entered the church, occupied the desk, and read through the entire morning service with the old sexton as the sole member of the congregation. Dr. Greenwood was not obliged to repeat this act. Upon the next Sabbath the committee provided a minister to supply the desk, and there were not a few heard to express the wish that there were more men like Dr. Greenwood.

DR. WILLIAM PITT AND MARY (LANGDON) GREENWOOD. (984-991.)

- (984) Dr. William Pitt Greenwood was married at Boston, Mass., July 23, 1796, to ⁹⁹¹Mary Langdon, daughter of ⁹⁹²Capt. John and ⁹⁹³Mary (Walley) Langdon, of Boston.

- (991) Mary Langdon was born in Boston, Mass., in 1775.
- (984) Dr. William Pitt and ⁹⁹¹Mary (Langdon) Greenwood had ten children, the eldest of whom was the eminent and cultured divine, the ⁹⁹⁴Rev. Dr. Francis William Pitt Greenwood, for many years the beloved pastor of King's Chapel, Boston, by whom and at which place Dr. Barrett and Miss Greenwood were united in the holy bond of wedlock.
- (994) Rev. Dr. Francis William Pitt Greenwood was born in Boston, Mass., February 5, 1797. He graduated from Harvard College in the class of 1814, studied theology under the direction of ⁹⁹⁵Rev. Dr. Henry Ware, became identified with the liberal or Unitarian Church and 1818 was settled as pastor over the New South Church and Society in Boston. Within a short time his health failed him, and obtaining leave of absence, he went to Europe in 1820; but not wholly recovering his health, he resigned his pastorate.

In the autumn of 1821 he returned, and for nearly two years resided in Baltimore, preaching occasionally and contributing liberally to the periodicals of his denomination. In 1824 he became the colleague of ⁹⁹⁶Rev. Dr. Freeman, pastor of King's Chapel, Boston. This relation continued until 1827, when Dr. Freeman retired from the pastorate, and Dr. Greenwood succeeded to the full charge of that church and society, and continued his pastoral relations with them until his decease in 1843.

Dr. Greenwood was a man of very scholarly tastes and high scientific and literary attainments, and was greatly beloved not only by his church and society, but by a host of other friends. Perhaps it is not too much to say of him, that, of the many able and beloved pastors of King's Chapel, no one, without a single exception, was the superior of Dr. Greenwood.

(984) Dr. William Pitt Greenwood, in the full possession of all his faculties, died at Boston, Mass., May 10, 1851, the anniversary of his birthday, aged eighty-five years.

(991) Mary (Langdon) Greenwood, widow of ⁹⁸⁴Dr. William Pitt Greenwood, survived her husband but a few years. She died at Boston, Mass., June 5th, 1855, aged eighty years.

(991) "Mrs. Mary (Langdon) Greenwood was in form and feature a very handsome woman. She possessed remarkably sound judgment as well as poetic imagination and ability, and was for many years a valued contributor to many literary periodicals. She was a devoted member of the church over which, for so many years, her son was the beloved pastor. She delighted in relieving the wants of the needy and distressed, and her piety and faith were only equalled by her generosity and benevolence: Her conversational powers were quite remarkable, and her wit and humor unsurpassed by any woman of her time. During her long and happy married life she held weekly receptions, at which were present many of the most literary, cultured and distinguished men and women of Boston.

"She retained her intellectual and physical powers until the last moment of her life, and in the great future not only will her children and grandchildren, but a host of other friends, rise up and call her blessed."

The compiler of this monograph trusts that no apology will be deemed necessary for the liberty taken in copying verbatim an obituary notice written by a life long, intimate and appreciative friend, ⁹⁹⁷Rev. Dr. Nathaniel Langdon Frothingham, for thirty-five years the pastor of the First Congregational Church in Boston, in which he has briefly sketched with a master's hand the interesting and lovely character of Mrs. Greenwood. The obituary notice was published in the Boston Daily Advertiser soon after Mrs. Greenwood's death.

“MARY LANGDON GREENWOOD.”

“To have been the mother of Francis W. P. Greenwood, was of itself a distinction. But it need not be counted among the honors of this excellent lady, for they belong to herself, and had not to borrow anything from ancestors or posterity. One who had the privilege of enjoying her regard for more than half a century, owes more than these few, hurried lines to her memory.

“Her mind, from early life, was seen to be of superior quality. It easily received the finest culture. It had strong affinities for all that was delicate and tasteful in literary art; and loved to exercise itself with a pen, which she knew how to employ easily and gracefully. At the same time, the subjects that it preferred were of that practical character, which marked the whole course of her matured and declining life. The ‘American Preceptor’ of Mr. Caleb Bingham, who was the distinguished master of the leading Grammar School in Boston two generations ago, contains a dialogue on female education from her hand, which has a place yet in the recollection of many persons, and which doubtless took good effect upon the dispositions of many more, who often read it and heard it read before the little public of their fellow students, but whose school of life has long been over.

“To these natural endowments, and the well-ordered balance and careful training of them, she added a noble and expressive countenance, and manners of such dignity and sweetness that no one could help feeling the influence of her presence. Her character was on the high, even plane of Christian principle: fertile in active usefulness and of shining purity. The virtues of it bore the stamp of the truest womanhood. Though of a sensitive and affectionate nature, she was remarkably steadfast in her whole mode of thought and conduct. She was judicious, watchful, sympathizing: always ready with her discreet counsel and her benevolent heart. I should describe her justly in saying that she was an extraordinary woman in what is considered an ordinary way. Her excellences lay in the common paths of a faithful, honored life. She had no ambition or passion beyond these. No single tendency dominated over the other growth of her spirits so as to be injurious or unsightly. She was always the same, without an effort consistent and uniform. There was no eccentricity about her. She never wandered from that dearest but most ample providence which the heavenly will seems to have prescribed, except in extraordinary circumstances, to her sex. She would have considered herself demeaned and not renowned by the fame of some who have won it by misdirected genius, or the pride of opinion or defiance of the rules of sober society.

So she lived for eighty years. And she lived them all. To their very last day she had full possession of every one of her nobler faculties. She retained the same equanimity, the same intelligence, the same vivid interest in what was passing around her, the same grateful appreciation of God's goodness, the same thoughtful kindness towards the many whom she loved, that had distinguished her more vigorous season. An accident, that which often befalls the step of age, had long confined her to the house. But there she sat, with the same dignity and charm of conversation as of old, receiving constantly the visits which she was no longer able to return, and sending abroad various little testimonials of her friendly remembrance. There was no old age in her unwrinkled understanding or the warm flow of her affections. She was a center of union to a wide circle of attachments till she drew her last breath. And no one could expire more tranquilly than she did. She was dressed for the usual duties of the day of which she was not to see the close, when her head dropped. Her last words were, 'God bless you,' and then, without struggle or pain, she passed away, to be herself the object of that blessing for ever and ever."

MARY SUSAN (GREENWOOD) BARRETT.

With such parents as Dr. William Pitt and Mary (Langdon) Greenwood, so gentle and amiable in their manners, and so cultivated and refined in their tastes and associations as they were, it would indeed be a matter of no little surprise if the sweet and lovely child, Mary Susan Greenwood, under the watchful and tender care, training and education of her parents, from her earliest childhood surrounded by, and brought in almost daily contact with the brightest and most highly cultivated minds of the eminent men and women of Boston, had not developed into a beautiful, cultivated and accomplished woman, so amiable and winning in her manners and so gentle, generous, sympathizing and affectionate in her nature as to win the love and respect of all who were brought within the charmed circle of her acquaintance and friendship. She was, indeed, a fit companion for her beloved husband, Dr. Barrett, in all his arduous labors, and was ever a cheerful, willing, able and sympathizing assistant in the discharge of the various and laborious duties of his great trust.

The compiler believes that, as "Out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh," he cannot render a better service to those who may feel an interest in his self-imposed labor in the preparation of this Genealogy, than to here place on record the impressions sketched, at his request, by the loving and dutiful hand of one who, for nearly forty years, had been a daily witness of the almost perfect life and character of Mrs. Mary Susan (Greenwood) Barrett.

In reply to a request made by the writer, Mrs. Chandler writes in substance as follows: "It seems almost an impossibility for me to write anything that would do justice to my mother's life, her character being the most perfect one I have ever known. She was truly a noble woman, such an one as is seldom seen, but when once seen and known, as we knew her, can never be forgotten. Her intellectual qualities were very superior, and had been carefully nurtured and trained; her tastes were refined and delicate, her range of reading was broad, elevating and pure, her love for and knowledge of music was very remarkable, and no one who has ever listened to the sweetness and pathos of her voice in singing, will ever forget it. She was, for two years, the soprano singer in a voluntary choir at King's Chapel during the time her brother, Dr. Greenwood, was pastor.

"Her utter forgetfulness of self was remarkable, and she was never so happy as when she could do an act of kindness to others. As she grew older and her health and strength failed, her interest in the happiness and welfare of her children, grand-children and all those around her, seemed to increase until her death, which was such a peaceful ending of a perfect life. She had not been feeling as well as usual during the day preceding her death, and therefore retired early. She awoke in the middle of the night only to exclaim in her sweet voice, "Oh! how beautiful!" and in that peaceful quiet way, without another word, or a single struggle, she passed over the silent river to join the loved ones waiting upon the other shore to receive her. It seems such a lovely and comforting remembrance to know that both of my beloved parents should have had glimpses of the heavenly future ere they passed away. I feel that I have said too little and that in a very unsatisfactory way. It should be remembered that my mother's cares were very great, a large family of her own, many visitors, the constant and sometimes pressing demands imposed by the cares of a city parish, suffering from that most distressing complaint, asthma, naturally very delicate, continual demands of every kind upon her time and purse, and yet, notwithstanding all her cares, trials and bodily afflictions, there was never heard from her one impatient or complaining word, not a murmur that her burden in this life was greater than she was called upon to bear. She bore her burdens with such cheerfulness and humility that to her friends it seemed a crown she was called upon to wear and not a cross to bear.

"During the last six years of her life she was confined to her house by inflammatory rheumatism, and so long as memory lasts I shall never forget her appearance as she sat in her arm chair in the room where she received so many visitors. Every one must have felt as I did, the sweet and happy influence of her presence as they gazed upon her sweet and delicate but expressive countenance, observed her easy, lovely and dignified manners, and listened to her conversation, so entertaining and instructive and ever marked by words of wisdom and goodness.

“Her pastor (after Dr. Barrett’s removal to Roxbury) ⁹⁹⁸Rev. Dr. George Putnam, was accustomed to say that when he felt weary and discouraged, he had only to pass an hour with my mother and witness her cheerfulness and patience in the midst of almost constant physical suffering, to enable him to renew his labors with strengthened and increased vigor.

“In brief, so nearly did my mother come up to my standard of a perfect woman, that it is not possible for me, say what I may, to do justice to her. To me she was, and ever will be, the one lovely, perfect woman, my beloved mother.”

(695) Rev. Benjamin Fiske Barrett, a cousin of ⁹⁵⁰Rev. Dr. Samuel Barrett, has, by request, kindly furnished the following tender and delicate tribute to the memory of ⁹⁸³Mrs. Mary Susan (Greenwood) Barrett.

“During my few years residence at Cambridge, I was a frequent visitor at the house of Rev. Samuel Barrett, and the memory of that bright and beautiful home still lingers with me, and its fragrance rather increases than diminishes as the years roll on. I have since made the acquaintance of not a few intelligent, lovely and truly Christian women, but I cannot remember a single one who seemed to combine so many and so great excellencies of character as did the wife of Dr. Barrett. She was indeed a model wife and mother, the nearest to a perfect woman of any one I ever knew; intelligent, cultured, self-poised. and of delicate and refined tastes and feelings; kind, cheerful, and with a heart bubbling over with tenderness and benevolence; full of sympathy with, of faith in, and encouragement for every noble and righteous cause; ruling her family not by fear or frowns, or any of the old time harshness, but with a love that seemed truly angelic, combined with a wisdom no less exalted.

“With the many parochial and social duties incumbent on one in her position, all of which were cheerfully and faithfully discharged, she never seemed to underrate the importance of her duties as a mother, and never neglected any of them. Her religion was one that manifested itself in her ordinary every day life, in the faithful, cheerful and glad performance of every known duty.

“The last time I saw her—not long, I think, before her removal to the spirit-world—she was confined to her chair by a painful rheumatism. But there was the same beautiful serenity that she had ever exhibited when in health, the same lovely smile upon her face, the same sweetness in her voice and cheerfulness in her conversation, the same interest in all philanthropic work, the same signs of moral and religious progress, and the same strong and unwavering trust in the infinite goodness and wisdom of the Lord. Surely, thought I, as I left her house, that lovely woman has nothing but heaven within her; and where else, when she leaves the body, can she find a congenial home but in the society of angels—the society of the blessed?”

(983) Mary Susan (Greenwood) Barrett died at Roxbury, Mass., March 15, 1874, aged sixty-eight years, ten months and twenty-six days.

“‘T is beautiful!’ she faintly cried,

“Then closed her weary eyes and died.”

* * * * *

“For open eyes saw heaven’s shores,

“And life not death revealed its stores.

“‘T is beautiful!’ It must be so,

“If such a soul, ‘midst parting’s woe,

“Could with such perfect clearness see

“The secret of life’s mystery;

"Could know that fullest life to man
 "Needs heaven's light to round God's plan.
 "Oh, woman-soul without a peer,
 "We thank thee more and more each year.
 "For this sweet proof of Beauty's power,
 "Beyond earth's transitory hour.
 "It calms our hours of doubt and pain,
 "And beautifies earth's troubled reign,
 "To feel that thou art sending still
 "This same sweet message of God's will,
 "Born of fruition's grander sight,
 "Of perfect beauty, peace and light."

During this period he received private instruction from ¹⁰²⁴Rev. Eli F. Cooley, his future father-in-law, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Cherry Valley. After leaving the employ of Mr. Magher at the age of twenty-one years, he entered the Academy at Cherry Valley with the intention of preparing for the ministry, and remained there one year under the tuition of ¹⁰²⁵Prof. McFarland, who was

DR. GEORGE WASHINGTON AND ALMIRA (BARRETT)
CLEVELAND. (1063-956)

- (956) Almira Barrett⁶, daughter of ²⁸¹Major Benjamin Fiske and ⁹⁴⁹Betsy (Gerrish) Barrett was born in Wilton, N. H., August 27, 1808.

She received a finished education at one of the very best schools of her day in New England, the then justly celebrated school of ¹⁰⁶²Miss Prescott at Groton, Mass., where she spent three years under the instruction of that most accomplished and successful teacher.

Mrs. Cleveland was a lady of many rare and varied accomplishments, of a sweet, cheerful and happy disposition and was sympathetic, gentle and affectionate in her nature.

A long life of purity in thought and action and deeds of disinterested kindness and charity, crowned by a Christian's belief in a future life as simple as it was pure, self-satisfying and self-sustaining, endeared her, not only to her immediate relatives and friends, but to all who came within the charmed circle of her acquaintance.

The hallowed memory and blessed influences of her sweet life and character, are the priceless jewels left by her for her children and friends, richer by far than silver or gold.

She was married at Springfield, New York, October 10, 1832, to ¹⁰⁶³George Washington Cleveland, M. D., of Waterville, New York.

- (1063) Dr. George Washington Cleveland was born in Westmoreland, Oneida County, New York, June 27, 1808. He died at Waterville, New York, December 4, 1884, aged seventy-six years, five months and seven days.
- (956) Almira (Barrett) Cleveland died at Waterville, New York, March 11, 1886, aged seventy-seven years, six months and fourteen days.

(1063) Dr. George Washington Cleveland, in 1826, when eighteen years of age, left his home at Westmoreland, New York, and went to Waterville, New York, where an elder brother, now living, ³⁹³Dr. William Phelps Cleveland, then unmarried, was practicing his profession. (For further reference to ³⁹³Dr. William Phelps Cleveland, see ³⁸³Mary Ann Tower, granddaughter of ³³⁶Stephen and ²⁷⁷Molly (Barrett) Barrett, whom he married).

In 1827 he commenced the study of medicine under the instruction of his brother, ³⁹³Dr. William Phelps Cleveland. The study of his profession thus begun with his brother, was pursued and completed at the Fairfield, N. Y., Medical School; and in July, 1831, he was graduated and received his medical diploma from the University of the State of New York, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Western District.

After his graduation ¹⁰⁶³Dr. Cleveland practiced his profession for a short time in two or three towns in New York (in Marshall, Oneida County, and in Sherburne, Chenango County, N. Y.) and also for a short time in Homer, Michigan. In 1836 he returned to Waterville, N. Y., where he permanently located, and practiced medicine and surgery from 1836 until his last illness in the latter part of November, 1884, a period of nearly fifty years, (forty-eight years, in fact).

During his long period of active professional labor he was associated in business at different times with ³⁹³Dr. William Phelps Cleveland, ¹⁰⁶⁴Drs. Charles Johnson, ¹⁰⁶⁵F. T. Gorton, and ¹⁰⁶⁶Claude Wilson.

(1063) Dr. George Washington Cleveland, like his brother, ³⁹³Dr. William Phelps Cleveland, who survives him at the advanced age of eighty-seven years, was eminently successful as a physician and surgeon, and during the long period of his professional activity, enjoyed a very large and lucrative practice. "In medical circles it is said of ¹⁰⁶³Dr. Cleveland that he ranked very high as a physician, and that he excelled in prognosis, his judgment as to the course or termination of a disease being almost infallible. To the sick room he always brought a genial and hope-inspiring manner which was of great comfort to his patients and assistance to himself in their treatment. It was his custom to persevere even when all others despaired, and he often spent uninterrupted days at the side of a sick person. He had for an axiom that 'No man dies until he stops breathing.' To the poor and improvident he was a 'friend indeed.'

"These people he served faithfully, often gratuitously, and made no discrimination against even those who were unworthy."

(1063) Dr. Cleveland took a deep interest in public affairs, and at different times held offices of trust and honor. He was for several years Justice of the Peace for his town, and a member of the Board of Supervisors, which office he held at the time of his decease. He had also been the candidate of his political party on two or more different occasions, for member of the State Assembly; and such was his personal popularity that, notwithstanding the fact that his district was largely opposed to him in politics, he was only defeated in his last candidacy by seventeen votes.

(1063) Dr. Cleveland was an active member of the Masonic fraternity, and in it held high rank.

(1063) Dr. George Washington and ⁹⁵⁶Almira (Barrett) Cleveland had four children, three sons and one daughter, viz:

1067 Orlando Samuel Cleveland₇, born in Marshall,

Oneida County, N. Y., November 21, 1833. He died at Marshall, N. Y., October 22, 1835, aged one year and eleven months.

He, like his father, is quite a zealous Masonic worker, and has already attained high rank. He is in the enjoyment of good health, full of energy and possesses business ability and tact that ought to enable him to make a success of anything he undertakes.

(958) William Barrett, Esq.,⁶ the sixth son of ²⁸¹Major Benjamin Fiske and ³⁴⁹Betsey (Gerrish) Barrett, was born in Springfield, New York, November 18, 1812.

He was prepared for college and entered Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., in 1833. He soon afterwards severed his connection with Amherst and entered Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., from which he was graduated in course in the class of 1837, with high rank for scholarship and general acquirements. He is a member of the Sigma Phi Society. After his graduation he commenced the study of medicine, attended medical lectures, and received the degree of Doctor of Medicine. After graduating in medicine he commenced the study of law in the office of ¹⁰⁷⁸Col. J. C. Baker, Otsego County, New York, and completed his legal studies in the office of ¹⁰⁷⁹Hon. Joshua C. Spencer, an eminent lawyer of central New York, and was admitted to the bar. He practiced for a short time at Waterville, Oneida County, N. Y., and afterwards located at Cherry Valley, Otsego County, N. Y.

He was regarded as one of the best and most promising of the young lawyers at the Otsego County Bar. In 1850 he removed to Binghamton, Boone County, New York, where he continued to reside and practice his profession until his decease in 1872.

- (958) William Barrett, Esq., was an able lawyer, well grounded in the principles and science of law, thoroughly conversant with the practice, not only the old common law practice in which he was trained, but also with the code practice; (to this latter he was at first bitterly opposed, as were many of the older and most eminent judges and members of the bar throughout the State of New York, for the reason that they believed it was an attempt to undermine and overthrow the time-honored and custom-sanctioned principles of pleading, which had practically been reduced to a science). Devotedly in love with his profession, he became one of the most eminent and successful members of the bar, of which ¹⁰⁸⁰Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson, ¹⁰⁸¹Judge Griswold, ¹⁰⁸²Judge Edwards, ¹⁰⁸³Judge Loomis and ¹⁰⁸⁴Hon. George Bartlett were brilliant and honored members. He was an honest, faithful and conscientious counselor; he would not accept a retainer in any case in which he did not believe he ought to succeed; he carefully studied and prepared his cases, and went into court thoroughly equipped with authorities upon every doubtful legal point, with his evidence well digested and arranged, and his witnesses trained to sustain themselves upon the direct and cross examination. In the argument of a legal proposition to the court, he was clear, logical, terse and convincing, sustaining his proposition with an abundant and ready citation of authorities. Before a jury in the final summing up of evidence and facts, he was very successful; of pleasing address, calm and dignified in his manner, happy in illustration, clear in elucidation, courteous to the court and to his opponent, possessing much personal magnetism, and favored with oratorical powers of a high order, he usually carried the jury with him, and won success for his clients. It was said of him by the late ¹⁰⁸¹Judge Griswold of the Broome County Bar, that in his opinion "Mr. Barrett was the finest orator of the Broome County Bar."

In politics he was a Democrat and a strong partisan, but thoroughly honest and conscientious. He took an active interest in politics, and in nearly every state and national campaign his services as a public speaker were in great demand. He was a powerful "stump speaker." In a political speech his oratorical powers, his sparkling wit and dry humor, his large fund of apt and telling stories and his ready repartee made him a most formidable and dangerous antagonist.

In his family and social relations he was kind, generous, courteous and lovable.

William Barrett, Esq., was twice married.

In 1845, shortly after the death of his father (his father died October 31, 1844,) he removed from Springfield to South Valley, Otsego County, New York, where he established himself in the same business and successfully carried it on until 1882: then, having acquired a competency of this world's goods, he sold out his business, purchased a small farm and is now, at the age of sixty-eight years, in the enjoyment of good health, spending his remaining years quietly and comfortably, free from the cares and annoyances of an active business life.

He is a man of great energy and intelligence, of sound judgment and wise foresight. His advice is frequently sought by his friends and acquaintances throughout his county. He is thoroughly informed in public affairs, in which he has always taken a deep interest. After his graduation he went into business as a partner with his father at South Valley, N. Y., and continued in the tannery business three years, from 1874 to 1877; he then sold his interest in that business to his father, and purchased a farm in South Valley. He soon exchanged his farm for a dry goods store. He continued in the dry goods business until the autumn of 1878, when his health failing he was obliged to give up business and seek a warmer and more salubrious climate. In September, 1878, he went to Mexico, Audrain County, Missouri, where he purchased 176 acres of land and went to farming. He continued to reside in Mexico and cultivate his farm, with the exception of a brief period spent in Colorado for the restoration of his rapidly failing health, until his decease in December, 1881.

He was an upright, promising and ambitious young man, too early cut down by disease; but he left to his friends the richest of legacies, the example of a pure life and character without a spot or blemish upon them.

- (1115) Louisa Whitney₆, youngest daughter of ¹¹⁰⁷Capt. Phineas and ²⁸²Bethiah (Barrett) Whitney, was married at Winchendon, Mass., December 14, 1835, to ¹¹⁸³Rev. Giles Lyman of Jaffrey, N. H.

There was no issue of this marriage.

- (1183) Rev. Giles Lyman was born in Belchertown, Mass., March 16, 1802. His parents moved from Belchertown to Shelburne, Mass., when ¹¹⁸³Giles Lyman was quite young.

He was regularly prepared for and entered Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., in 1823, and was graduated therefrom in the class of 1827. He studied Divinity at the Andover Theological Seminary, Andover, Mass., and was graduated from that Seminary in the class of 1830.

He was regularly ordained as pastor of the Congregational Church in Jaffrey, N. H., January 11, 1832.

After having faithfully served this church and people for a period of more than five years, he was finally obliged, on account of failing health, to ask that the relation of pastor and church, which had been so pleasant and so fruitful of good to the great and sacred cause to which he had consecrated his life, should be severed. His people, who were greatly attached to him, desired him to take a year's vacation, and then return to them if the condition of his health would permit; but Mr. Lyman thought it best that he should be regularly dismissed, and they reluctantly consented. He was dismissed May 3, 1837, and soon after went to his father's home in Western New York, where he remained for some time, doing light work on the farm. The climate agreed with him, and to some extent he regained his health and strength. He subsequently went to Winchendon, Mass., where Mrs. Lyman's family and friends resided. While at Winchendon he temporarily supplied the pulpit of a brother minister in an adjoining town, who desired rest for three months. He also preached nine months in Gardner, Mass., during the absence of the pastor of the church.

In 1840 the Congregational Church at Marlborough, N. H., a town adjoining Jaffrey, where he was first settled, had become somewhat divided and was without a pastor. Mr. Lyman was invited to become their pastor. He accepted the invitation, and December 13, 1840, commenced his labors.

He remained with this church and people until April 27, 1868, a period of more than a quarter of a century, and had the great satisfaction, when he closed his labors, of leaving a united, living, useful church, and a happy and flourishing society. He was dismissed at his own request. After his dismissal he removed to Winchendon, Mass., where he continued to reside, loved and respected by all who knew him, until he passed to his rest, November 16, 1872, aged seventy years and eight months.

- (1115) Mrs. Louisa (Whitney) Lyman, widow of the ¹¹⁸³Rev. Giles Lyman, is yet living (April, 1887,) at the age of seventy five years, and resides at Winchendon, Mass.
